Bell Choice Stirs Most Controversy

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The first serious controversy of President-elect Carter's transition to the White House is erupting over the civil rights record of Griffin Bell, the former federal judge Carter wants as his attorney general.

Carter has twice publicly defended Bell's record as "superlative." He says his confidence in him is "absolute."

But he has failed to still increasing criticism over Bell's judicial opinions in desegregation cases and his membership in private clubs that have no black or Jewish members.

Bell, an Atlanta lawyer, longtime Carter ally and law partner to chief Carter adviser Charles Kirbo, has called a news conference for Thursday to face what he himself has called "hard" questions.

The criticism of the appointment centers on the depth of Bell's support for civil rights, on his views on busing as a tool for public school integration and on his 1970 support for Richard Nixon's nomination of G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court.

Bell's support for Carswell came in a letter written five days after public disclosure that Carswell had once made a speech advocating racial segregation.

Bell said Monday that he didn't know about the Carswell speech when he voiced his support of Carswell for the Supreme Court. But the New York Daily News today quoted Bell as saying he had erred in denying that he knew of the Carswell letter.

"I was mistaken about that," Bell told the News. "I had to know about that."

Bell's membership in three all-white private clubs in Georgia drew hostile remarks Tuesday from a number of black leaders, including Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. Mitchell pledged an all-out fight to block Bell's nomination, especially if he does not repudiate his club memberships and his formerly unequivocal support of Carswell.

Bell is expected to face an intense grilling on his record at his confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee. But committee aides say he is not now expected to lose in any battle over his nomination.

Oil Spill Said Worst Ever

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Thrashing winter seas and 50-mile-per-hour winds today threatened Coast Guard efforts to sink the front half of a Liberian oil tanker that broke apart, unleashing one of history's worst oil spills.

Fifteen-foot waves crashed over the broken Argo Merchant, carrying oil into the rich Georges Bank commercial fishing grounds since the tanker split Tuesday morning.

Massachusetts waited for word from officials in Washington, D.C., on the state's request for federal aid for businessmen whose livelihoods might be damaged by the spreading oil.

Oil-coated birds have been spotted by the hundreds on Nantucket, but wind and wave were sweeping the oil away from beaches.

The break-up early Tuesday of the 640-foot tanker Argo Merchant spewed 75 per cent of her 7.6 million gallons of heavy industrial crude oil into a slick 75 miles long and more than 25 miles wide at its broadest point.

"This is the biggest oil spill disaster on the American coast in our history," said Russell Train, head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The aged, rusting vessel — called a "suspect ship" by the Coast Guard because of 19 previous mishaps since 1964 — piled onto the Middle Rip Shoals 27 miles southeast of this island resort one week ago today. She was 10 miles off course when she hit.

No one was injured in the pile-up, and no one was aboard when she broke up Tuesday at 8:55 a.m.

"We're going to try to lighten the ship by shifting the cargo, and hope there will be enough buoyancy ... We'll pump off part of the cargo ... then tow it out to sea and sink what's left," said Coast Guard Capt. Lynn Hein. He said the ship could be a hazard to other vessels unless it were removed from the area.

Had the cargo been gasoline, it would have been enough for an automobile to be driven around the world 6,000 times at the equator.

"I am convinced some of the oil has gotten to Georges Bank," Coast Guard Rear Adm. James P. Stewart told reporters.

The vessel was on its way from Venezuela to Salem, Mass. Stewart said an investigation showed the ship's master was not using all navigating equipment available to him, and that the ship was not kept in repair.

The captain of the Argo Merchant, George Papadopoulos, was summoned today to deliver a deposition on the grounding in open court.

He said the reason for the grounding was "I was in the wrong position."

He is being sued by Cape Cod fishermen who demand $60 million in damages. They claim in their suit against the captain and ship's owners that the spill will cost many of them their livelihoods because of polluted seas.

International maritime law and U.S. environmental and shipping laws are imprecise on the subject of liability. One theory had it that the owners could be sued only for the value of the ship and its cargo — which after the disaster could be nothing.

If the oil washes onto U.S. shores, lawyers here believe the owners of the vessel could be prosecuted for environmental infractions.

Hijackers Yield After 15 Hours

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A disgruntled airline mechanic surrendered today after taking two persons hostage and commandeering a DC8 jetliner almost 15 hours before, authorities said.

Palm J. Hinnant, 37, was quietly removed from the plane shortly after 6:30 a.m., bringing to an end the tense drama that began Tuesday afternoon.

One of the hostages, Richard Funk, was rushed to Peninsula Hospital. The 38-year-old United Airlines shop manager earlier told authorities over the airplane radio that Hinnant had slashed him several times after forcing the two hostages to board the empty airliner.

The other hostage, United Airlines mechanic Jerry Dusenberry, 42, was released unharmed by Hinnant about an hour earlier after two of the hijacker's friends boarded the aircraft.

"Everybody's coming off and we got the gun," Lincoln Jones, one of Hinnant's friends, told authorities shortly before the disturbed hijacker surrendered.

The drama began at 4:20 p.m., PST, when Hinnant, a divorced father of two, forced his captives aboard the empty aircraft at gunpoint, according to officials, and began issuing a series of demands, including fuel, food, clothing, brandy, and the flight crew.

Hinnant, said to be on sick leave from United since April 1975, quickly swapped Hector Spencer, a United mechanic, for Jerry Dusenberry, 42, another mechanic, because Spencer was unable to operate the plane's radio. The second hostage was 38-year-old United shop manager Richard Funk, a father of three.

"Palm is going to take action very damn shortly," Funk warned as the siege entered its 10th hour at the foggy airport south of the city. He had issued similar warnings through the evening and earlier said he was cut twice by Hinnant and was bleeding profusely.

"I'm looking at him eyeball-to-eyeball and I know he means it. The situation is extremely desperate," Funk added.

But FBI negotiators continued to tell the would-be hijacker that no flight crew could be found to man an aircraft that would substitute for the jetliner.

City Fathers Hold Double Session Tuesday

By CRAIG ALLISON

Circleville City Council met in regular session Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

Tom Wells reported as chairman of the safety committee that results of a traffic study at the South Court Street Elementary School had been given to the report concerned traffic and pedestrian patterns of movement in relation to traffic control devices. Council discussed the possibility of moving the traffic light at Walnut and Court Streets to the intersection of Town and Court Streets. Wells advised council to take the matter under consideration and that they would act on it at a later date.

Wells also reported that Captain Jerry Smallwood of the Circleville Police Department had requested that council give their approval to the purchase of a new "repeater" radio system that would upgrade the present radio system used by the police and fire departments and the Circleville Emergency Medical Squad. The city has until February in order to qualify for federal funds on the project, and they would have to get started on the purchase of such a system in the near future in order to have the system functional by February.

City Solicitor John Adkins told council that they would have to pay five per cent of the matching funds from the federal government, and that the FCC had recommended the new system. The new system would allow direct contact with the Emergency Room of Berger Hospital, and Adkins stated that such direct contact would be a requirement if paramedical services would ever be a part of the Circleville EMT. He urged council to give their support to the request, which they did after a short discussion.

Council passed an ordinance that transferred $19,500 to the police salary fund, and $16,554 to the firemen's salary fund from the general fund. This was to put money back into those funds that had been taken out at an earlier date and put into the general fund.

Goldschmidt also reported as chairman of the finance committee that the projected budget has a deficit of $120,000 because of requests from all the city departments. To compensate for this, Goldschmidt said that $66,000 apiece had been cut from the police and fire salary accounts.

Goldschmidt also reported that a $50,000 deficit is seen on the current budget by the auditor. He stated that the finance committee had not touched on any salary ordinances and that they were waiting for the departments to submit their requests.

Mayor Frank Barnhill reported to council that the city would pick up used Christmas trees on January 3, 4, and 5, and that there would be no definite schedule. He said that the trees would be taken to a central location and chipped, then disposed of properly.

Barnhill also said that two publishing firms had been contacted for furnishing bids for updating the city ordinances.

The mayor said that he had been informed by the Ohio Historical Site Association that an area of Circleville had been "put in the mill" for recognition by the Federal Historical Site Association. The area is bounded on the north by Pinckney and Watt Streets, on the west by Western Ave., on the south by Union Street, and on the east by Washington Street.

The mayor said that in his opinion, the appropriation requests by the water department and municipal court were "not realistic" and that a balance must be maintained.

Bob Kramer, county health department sanitarian, reported to council that the food permit holders in the city were all in good condition. He stated that residents in the area of Eshelman's Mill had contacted the health department concerning some type of matter that the mill had been emitting. The matter had been settling on homes and cars in the area. Kramer said that the EPA had been notified, and that an appointment with them would be arranged in the future.

Solicitor Adkins informed council that some confusion existed over the liquor issues in the Fourth Ward of the city as they applied to the recent election. Adkins stated that the ballot language did not cover 3.2 per cent beer, which is not considered a malt beverage. The permit holders in the Fourth Ward are permitted to sell 3.2 per cent or lower beverages, according to Adkins.

Council read, accepted, and placed on file communications from Chief Robert Temple concerning the traffic study at South Court Street School, and also from Larry Plum and the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

With all regular business completed, council adjourned their regular meeting at 8:55 p.m., but Goldschmidt requested a special meeting of council for the purpose of informing the city fathers of appropriation requests from the public utilities department.

Goldschmidt stated that the finance committee had run into conflicts with municipal court and the public utilities department concerning the new budget.

Goldschmidt stated, "I have been accused of disliking Chuck Taylor (Public Utilities Director for the city). I want to go on the record as saying that I have nothing against Taylor. He is a friend and he has helped me many times. But we object to the salaries requested by that department."

Public Utilities Board member Dr. John Bowers told council that the budget submitted to council was nearly $15,000 under the total allowed by the county auditor. Bowers told council that it was important to grant salary increases to the top level jobs within the department, so that they would be competitive with other cities in the state when they had to replace personnel. "Other places pay people on a longevity program," stated Bowers, "and you're not going to entice people to come here if you're not going to offer them at least a competitive salary. The state and federal government says that you have to have qualified people to run your sewage and water plants, and sooner or later council will have to employ other

Killings Show Drop In Major Cities Across Buckeye State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The number of killings in Ohio's eight major cities dropped by 15 per cent during the first nine months of 1976 as the state's three largest cities showed large decreases in murders and non-negligent manslaughters.

In offenses reported to police from January 1976 through September 1976 in cities over 100,000 population, overall crime dropped by .7 per cent, compared to the same period a year earlier.

The U.S. Department of Justice released the figures Tuesday. At the same time national statistics revealed a rise in serious crime by two per cent during the period.

Jack E. McCormick, superintendent of the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, said, "Some of the federal government money in crime effort is starting to finally pay off. It only started in 1968 and I think there is some time lag in any program so big.

"Also, there has been for the first time since 1960 an increase in inmate population," he said, summing up his personal view why the crime figures showed a decline.

Throughout the nation, violent crimes decreased by 5 per cent while there were 10 per cent less murders in the three quarters of 1976.

The state's largest city, Cleveland, led the drop in crime with 6.5 per cent fewer offenses known to police during the nine-month stretch. Murders dropped there from 219 in 1975 to 181 in 1976.

In Dayton, crime decreased by 5.7 per cent; Cincinnati, down 4.9 per cent, and Columbus, down 4.8 per cent.

Youngstown recorded the highest increase in overall crime, with a 10.7 per cent rise in offenses. Twenty-four murders were reported in 1976 compared to three less the previous year.

Other crime rises were recorded in Canton, 2.6 per cent; Akron, 1.6 per cent, and Parma, 1.4 per cent.

By cities, the Justice Department said in:

AKRON — The crime index increased from 15,988 to 16,258 with a drop in murders and non-negligent manslaughters of 26 to 16.

CANTON — Murders and non-negligent manslaughters rose by 1 from 4 the previous year as the crime index went from 4,800 to 4,924.

CINCINNATI — Murders, non-negligent manslaughters, burglaries and breaking and enterings recorded decreases while the crime index went from 25,051 to 23,883.

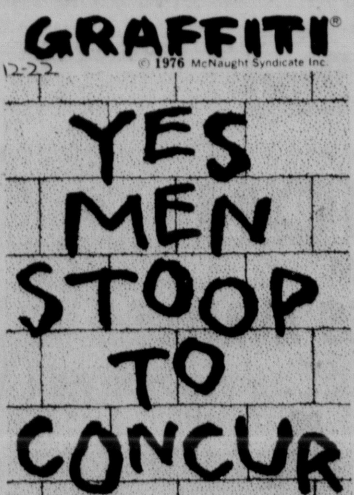

CLEVELAND — The number of murders and non-negligent manslaughters dropped from 219 to 181 as the crime index decreased from 42,183 to 39,423.

COLUMBUS — Murders and non-negligent manslaughters dropped off from 45 to 38 while the crime index went from 37,348 to 35,538.

DAYTON — Ten less murders were recorded in the 1976 period than the previous year's 56. The crime index decreased from 20,478 to 19,309.

PARMA — The crime index rose from 2,071 to 2,099. Two killings were recorded, double the previous year.

YOUNGSTOWN — The 10.7 per cent rise in crime index was seen in a rise in the crime index to 6,334 from 5,720 the previous year. Three more murders were recorded in 1976 compared to the 24 in 1975.

Council read, accepted, and placed on file communications from Chief Robert Temple concerning the traffic study at South Court Street School, and also from Larry Plum and the Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

With all regular business completed, council adjourned their regular meeting at 8:55 p.m., but Goldschmidt requested a special meeting of council for the purpose of informing the city fathers of appropriation requests from the public utilities department.

Goldschmidt said that the finance committee had run into conflicts with municipal court and the public utilities department concerning the new budget.

Goldschmidt stated, "I have been accused of disliking Chuck Taylor (Public Utilities Director for the city). I want to go on the record as saying that I have nothing against Taylor. He is a friend and he has helped me many times. But we object to the salaries requested by that department."

Public Utilities Board member Dr. John Bowers told council that the budget submitted to council was nearly $15,000 under the total allowed by the county auditor. Bowers told council that it was important to grant salary increases to the top level jobs within the department, so that they would be competitive with other cities in the state when they had to replace personnel. "Other places pay people on a longevity program," stated Bowers, "and you're not going to entice people to come here if you're not going to offer them at least a competitive salary. NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market pushed ahead today, resuming Tuesday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose about 3 points in the early going, and gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was brisk. Analysts said the strength the market showed in Tuesday's session had stirred up some excitement among investors.

They also noted a generally favorable news background. On Tuesday the Labor Department reported that its consumer price index rose at a relatively restrained rate of 0.3 per cent in November.

Today's prices included U.S. Steel, up 1/4 at 50 1/2; Weyerhaeuser, ahead 3/4 at 44 1/4, and RCA, up 1/4 at 26.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 5.98 to 978.39, reversing a decline of more than 11 points over the three previous sessions.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-4 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index added .27 to 56.17.

Big Board volume picked up to 24.39 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .38 at 104.32.

Final Respects Paid To Richard Daley

CHICAGO (AP) — Mourners waited outside a church in 18-degree temperatures today to pay their last respects to Mayor Richard J. Daley, hours before President-elect Carter and other invited dignitaries were to arrive for the funeral mass.

Carter was scheduled to arrive in Chicago by jet at 8:45 a.m. CST and proceed by car to the Church of the Nativity of Our Lord, a few minutes walk from the place where Daley was born and the bungalow where he lived most of his life.

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other national leaders also were scheduled to attend the 9:30 a.m. service.

A parish spokesman said about 300 persons had been invited to the private funeral, but members of the public would be allowed to occupy the rest of the 1,200 seats.

Thousands of Chicagoans came out Tuesday to view the body of the man who was their mayor for 22 years and boss for a quarter of a century of the largest political machine in the nation — the Cook County Democratic party. Daley died Monday of a heart attack at 74.

His four sons stood and his widow,

Eleanor, surrounded by her daughters and daughters-in-law, was seated as the mourners passed through the church in a double line. The Daleys shook every hand and thanked everyone who filed past the coffin.

The wake started at noon and was to have ended at 10 p.m., but more than 200 persons still waited for entry to the church after midnight.

Local politicians said it would be disrespectful to speak of power plays before the burial, but knots of aldermen and committeemen caucused Tuesday in City Hall, discussing possible heirs to at least some of Daley's empire.

Among Democratic regulars mentioned were Alderman Edward R. Vrdolyak, 38; George Dunne, president of the Cook County Board; Alderman Edward Burke, 34; Park District Supt. Edmund Kelly, 52, and Michael A. Bilandic, alderman from Daley's own 11th Ward.

One black politician who will be a factor is Wilson Frost, 53, committeeman of the South Side 34th Ward. He will be wielding the gavel when the Council meets Tuesday to choose a temporary mayor and may be interested in mounting a full-scale candidacy.

New Defense Chief Eyes Soviet Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold Brown, who will be defense secretary in the Carter administration, shares the present Pentagon leadership's concern about trends in relative Soviet and U.S. military spending.

"I am concerned about the trend, upward past trend, of Soviet expenditures ... and the downward trend of U.S. defense expenditures," Brown told a Tuesday news conference in Plains, Ga., after President-elect Carter named him to the defense post.

"If that continues indefinitely, or even for a substantial period, then I would begin to be concerned about our capabilities," he said.

Brown, who served as Pentagon research chief and Air Force secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, virtually echoed Donald H. Rumsfeld, the outgoing Ford administration's defense secretary.

In an ABC television interview later, Brown said the defense budget probably will rise, but that the Carter administration hopes to hold down the rate of increase through at least partially offsetting economies.

"There is no intent to cut U.S. military capabilities," Brown said. "I think it is going to be necessary to increase them."

At his news conference, Carter restated his campaign pledge to save between $5 billion and $7 billion in defense spending through a number of measures to eliminate waste and improve efficiency.

The President-elect was not clear on when savings of that magnitude will occur. The assumption has been that the new administration will attempt to trim the Ford administration defense budget proposal, expected to be a record $123 billion. Ford's budget will go to Congress shortly before Carter is inaugurated next month.

Carter also restated his promise to withdraw about 32,000 U.S. ground troops from South Korea, saying it would be a "very slow, very methodical, very careful" process in consultation with the South Korean and Japanese governments.

Such a U.S. ground troop pullback, which Carter previously said would occur over a four to five year period, still would leave about 8,000 U.S. airmen and U.S. fighter-bombers to back up South Korea.

Announcing Brown as defense secretary and Charles Duncan Jr., a Houston businessman, as deputy defense secretary, Carter stressed their management abilities and his hope of making the huge defense establishment operate on a more businesslike and frugal basis.

Fire Burns Storage Shed

Circleville Firefighters from both stations responded to a 2:12 p.m. alarm Tuesday afternoon.

According to the report, a storage shed owned by Charles Pennington, 1313 South Street, had caught fire. Cause of the blaze is still unknown.

Firemen battled the fire with 300 feet of one inch hose and were on the scene for approximately 48 minutes. No injuries were reported.

Man Slain For Gifts

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police say L.C. Carlisle apparently was killed for toys and other Christmas presents which family members had stored at the East Side home where he lived alone.

Relatives told police gifts were kept there so the youngsters wouldn't get into them.

Carlisle, 55, was found dead in the first-floor bedroom Tuesday morning, shot in the stomach with a small-caliber bullet. The door was wide open, and the Christmas presents were gone, police reported.

Carlisle's nephew, John Eggleton, said he spent one evening recently with his uncle, wrapping gifts which were then stacked in a bedroom.

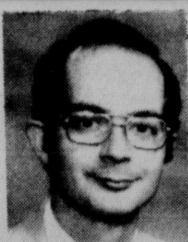

The stolen gifts included three dolls, a miniature racing set, an aftershave kit, a punch bowl and pots and pans.

Carlisle moved here a year ago from Indianapolis after a stomach ailment forced his retirement from a city job. Family members said he contented himself by entertaining his sister's grandchildren and enjoyed taking them to parks and other places.

Detectives said they had no suspects.

Carter Postpones HEW Decision

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is postponing until Thursday his final Cabinet appointment so he can make a quick trip to Chicago to attend funeral services for Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Daley, the Democratic boss whose efforts in Carter's behalf fell short of giving the President-elect Illinois' electoral votes this year, died Monday.

Carter was driving to Albany, Ga., some 50 miles from his home in Plains, then making a round trip flight to Chicago for today's funeral mass.

He said he planned to return home to Plains later in the day and would be on the telephone as part of his continuing hunt for top talent for his new administration.

The President-elect had planned to hold a news conference today to announce his choice for the final Cabinet vacancy — that of secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The news conference was rescheduled for 10 a.m. EST Thursday.

After announcing three Cabinet selections at a Tuesday news conference, Carter told reporters gathered around him that he also hoped to announce by Thursday his choices for director of central intelligence, chief of the nation's energy programs and FBI director.

Carter's reference to the FBI was unexpected since the President-elect earlier had given the impression he might take several weeks to decide whether to replace the present director, Clarence M. Kelley. Asked again if he might be planning to name someone new to the FBI post, Carter again responded, "I hope so." Kelley, has said he will not leave the post voluntarily.

At Monday's nationally broadcast news conference, Carter made the following personnel announcements:

—Harold Brown, president of the California Institute of Technology and a top Pentagon official during the Lyndon Johnson administration, will be Carter's secretary of defense. Carter said Brown's deputy secretary will be Charles Duncan Jr., a Houston investment banker and former president of the Atlanta-based Coca-Cola Co.

—Ray Marshall, University of Texas economics professor and director of the university's Center for the Study of Human Resources, to be secretary of labor.

—Patricia Roberts Harris, a Washington attorney and former dean of the Howard University Law School and ambassador to Luxembourg, to be secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Mrs. Harris was the second woman and the first black named to the incoming Cabinet.

Brown said his goal as defense secretary will be "an efficient, lean, muscular, responsive military organization" that will dovetail its activities with those of the state and treasury departments in seeking "an appropriate combination of foreign policy commitments, military capability and expenditures."

Carter told questioners he hopes the first federal budget he prepares will reflect a defense spending saving of $5 billion to $7 billion, as he promised in his campaign, and reiterated his intent to conduct a "very slow, very methodical, very careful withdrawal" of U.S. ground forces from South Korea.

BIBLE HISTORY — Mr. and Mrs. Dale Edwards presented a slide show history of The Bible at the Monday meeting of the Circleville Kiwanis Club. At the meeting, perfect attendance pins were presented by Charlie Ried to Charles Hart for 18 years and William Bradshaw for three years. It was also announced that Ladies Night would be held Dec. 27.

Yule Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — The Christmas holidays will be a time of highway tragedy for from 460 to 560 persons, the National Safety Council predicts.

The council released on Tuesday its estimate of the number of persons likely to die in highway accidents between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

Last year, 412 persons died during the Christmas holiday, the safety council said.

Since The Associated Press began counting holiday traffic deaths in 1946, the highest three-day Christmas total was 720 persons for 1965. The highest four-day holiday total was 706 in 1956.

The Safety Council estimates that 350 to 450 persons may die over the New Year's weekend. The worst New Year's holiday came in 1965 when 564 persons died in three days. The worst four-day period came in 1969 when 481 were killed.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police say L.C. Carlisle apparently was killed for toys and other Christmas presents which family members had stored at the East Side home where he lived alone.

Relatives told police gifts were kept there so the youngsters wouldn't get into them.

Carlisle, 55, was found dead in the first-floor bedroom Tuesday morning, shot in the stomach with a small-caliber bullet. The door was wide open, and the Christmas presents were gone, police reported.

Carlisle's nephew, John Eggleton, said he spent one evening recently with his uncle, wrapping gifts which were then stacked in a bedroom.

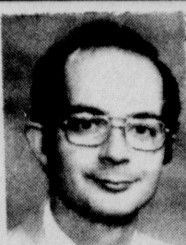

The stolen gifts included three dolls, a miniature racing set, an aftershave kit, a punch bowl and pots and pans.

Carlisle moved here a year ago from Indianapolis after a stomach ailment forced his retirement from a city job. Family members said he contented himself by entertaining his sister's grandchildren and enjoyed taking them to parks and other places.

Detectives said they had no suspects.

Carter Postpones HEW Decision

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter is postponing until Thursday his final Cabinet appointment so he can make a quick trip to Chicago to attend funeral services for Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Daley, the Democratic boss whose efforts in Carter's behalf fell short of giving the President-elect Illinois' electoral votes this year, died Monday.

Carter was driving to Albany, Ga., some 50 miles from his home in Plains, then making a round trip flight to Chicago for today's funeral mass.

He said he planned to return home to Plains later in the day and would be on the telephone as part of his continuing hunt for top talent for his new administration.

The President-elect had planned to hold a news conference today to announce his choice for the final Cabinet vacancy — that of secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The news conference was rescheduled for 10 a.m. EST Thursday.

After announcing three Cabinet selections at a Tuesday news conference, Carter told reporters gathered around him that he also hoped to announce by Thursday his choices for director of central intelligence, chief of the nation's energy programs and FBI director.

Carter's reference to the FBI was unexpected since the President-elect earlier had given the impression he might take several weeks to decide whether to replace the present director, Clarence M. Kelley. Asked again if he might be planning to name someone new to the FBI post, Carter again responded, "I hope so." Kelley, has said he will not leave the post voluntarily.

At Monday's nationally broadcast news conference, Carter made the following personnel announcements:

—Harold Brown, president of the California Institute of Technology and a top Pentagon official during the Lyndon Johnson administration, will be Carter's secretary of defense. Carter said Brown's deputy secretary will be Charles Duncan Jr., a Houston investment banker and former president of the Atlanta-based Coca-Cola Co.

—Ray Marshall, University of Texas economics professor and director of the university's Center for the Study of Human Resources, to be secretary of labor.

—Patricia Roberts Harris, a Washington attorney and former dean of the Howard University Law School and ambassador to Luxembourg, to be secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Mrs. Harris was the second woman and the first black named to the incoming Cabinet.

Brown said his goal as defense secretary will be "an efficient, lean, muscular, responsive military organization" that will dovetail its activities with those of the state and treasury departments in seeking "an appropriate combination of foreign policy commitments, military capability and expenditures."

Carter told questioners he hopes the first federal budget he prepares will reflect a defense spending saving of $5 billion to $7 billion, as he promised in his campaign, and reiterated his intent to conduct a "very slow, very methodical, very careful withdrawal" of U.S. ground forces from South Korea.

BIBLE HISTORY — Mr. and Mrs. Dale Edwards presented a slide show history of The Bible at the Monday meeting of the Circleville Kiwanis Club. At the meeting, perfect attendance pins were presented by Charlie Ried to Charles Hart for 18 years and William Bradshaw for three years. It was also announced that Ladies Night would be held Dec. 27.

2 Men Named To Judgeships

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Governor James A. Rhodes has announced the appointment of two men to serve as judges in Ohio courts.

Named were John J. Connors of Toledo, to serve as judge of the 6th District Court of Appeals, and Arthur D. Jackson of Dayton, appointed to Dayton Municipal Court.

Connors, 58, succeeds Frank W. Wiley who resigned as of Dec. 31. Connors has been judge of the Lucas County Common Pleas Court for 11 years.

Jackson, 34, is deputy director of the Montgomery County Public Defenders Office. A former assistant U.S. Attorney, he succeeds Judge M. Meagher, who resigned effective Jan. 5, 1977.

Ex-Artilleryman Has Own Cannon

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — His neighbors acknowledge that Dean Fellows is the "big gun" on the block. But when Fellows and his son, Scott, fire their homemade Napoleonic cannon, dishes rattle, windows quiver and neighbors wonder if the block has met its Waterloo.

Fellows, a retired Army artilleryman, and his son have built a four-fifths scale cannon, big and loud enough so the neighbors will be happy when it's sold.

The muzzle-loader will hurl a golf ball about 1,200 yards, or a 20-ounce lead ball about 700 yards.

It took 18 months for the two to build the cannon from a solid piece of metal that once was part of an aircraft carrier's drive shaft. The wheels and framework are made of oak. Fellows is asking $6,000.

for all the cards, flowers, food and prayers for their dear mother during her illness and death. A special thanks to the Rev. Currens, the Christian Womens Circle of the Zion Methodist Church, the staff at St. Lukes Convalescent Center, Mt. Carmel, East, the pall bearers, Bastian Funeral Home and all others for their acts of kindness shown to the family. May God Bless each one of you.

The Everfaithful Class of the Zion Methodist Church met at the home of Peg Trimble for their Christmas Party. Mae Alexander, the class teacher, led the group in Scripture and Prayer. "Blessed Assurance of Christmas" was read by Dorothy Cook.

Following the business meeting several gifts were presented to Mrs. Alexander and Vergie Wean, the assistant teacher, by members of the class. Four boxes of food were fixed to give out as one of the class projects. A gift exchange was enjoyed by all.

Lovely refreshments were served by the committee to Nancy Cook, Janie Smith, Betty Curry, Violet Currens, Alma Higgins, Hilda Nance, Faye Mahaffey, Allie Lawson, Faye Leatherwood, Fern Bozman, Mary Helen Miller, Gretchen Fortner, Penny and Patricia, Bev Stamper, Mae Alexander, Verna Remy, Arlene Fortner and Charlie, Martha Martin, Sonia Seymour, Vergie Wean, Dorothy Cook. Members of the committee were Joyce Gloyd and Peg Trimble.

A favor and card was presented to each member.

Clarabelle Pobst would like to thank everyone who remembered her with cards, flowers, prayers and visits during her stay in Grant Hospital and since she has returned home. A special thanks to the Rev. and Mrs. Starling Morrow for their many visits and prayers. All were greatly appreciated.

An annual Christmas Dinner and gift exchange was held in the home of Mrs. Maxine Dixon on Dec. 19. Those attending were Mrs. Ethel Timmons of Londonderry, the Rev. and Mrs. Mark Harber, Wendy, Robin and Sherri, Mrs. Patsy Doyle all of Amanda, Mrs. Erma Dyke of Circleville, Larry Dixon of Adelphi, Mrs. Marie Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dixon, Scott, Julyn and Amy, Gene Timmons, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Dixon, and Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFarland, Bobby and Eddie and Mrs. Dixon, all of Ashville.

Members of the Cheerful Gleaners Sunday School Class of the Zion Methodist Church held their annual Christmas Party on Monday in the home of Mrs. Gladys Rush.

A carry-in dinner was served at the noon hour with a gift exchange following. The afternoon was spent in visiting.

Those enjoying the day were the class teacher, Mabel Jinks, Lillie Seymour, Mollie Powell, Dorothy Ties and the hostess, Mrs. Rush.

Results of the Ashville Belles Tuesday Morning Housewives Bowling League for Dec. 21 were; High three-game series, Nadine Findley, 528; High single game, Pam Moody, 220; High team series and game, Bev's House of Beauty, 1967 and 688.

Egypt, Syria Plan New Unity Attempt

CAIRO (AP) — Two months ago Egypt and Syria weren't speaking. Now they're engaged again.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy announced Tuesday that President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Syrian President Hafez Assad agreed in talks here Sunday and Monday to make another attempt at a political union of Israel's two chief adversaries.

The late Gamal Abdel Nasser organized the first Egyptian-Syrian union in 1958 and called it the United Arab Republic. The Syrians pulled out three years later because they were fed up with Nasser's domination. A 1972 agreement to join Egypt, Syria and Libya into a Federation of Arab Republics was never implemented.

A political declaration after Assad flew back to Damascus Tuesday announced the formation of a supreme political leadership made up of the two presidents and aides to be named later.

No target date was announced for completion of the merger. Fahmy said joint committees will be formed soon for foreign affairs, defense, constitutional questions, economics and other areas, and these committees will decide the form of the union.

Egypt and Syria coordinated their attack on Israel in 1973 and fought the war together but split over their responses to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peacemaking efforts.

Assad broke with Sadat 15 months ago because he signed the second Sinai agreement with Israel without making it conditional on an Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights front with Syria. King Khaled of Saudi Arabia brought them together at the Riyadh summit conference in October which authorized the Syrian army to occupy Lebanon under the guise of a peacekeeping force.

Since then, Assad and Sadat have been pressing for a united Arab front to face Israel if the expected Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva is held.

Fahmy said Egypt and Syria would send separate delegations if the talks are reconvened, "unless it is decided beforehand to send one combined delegation" representing all the Arabs. However, a joint communique issued after the Assad-Sadat meeting said the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) should attend the talks as a separate delegation.

Israel has refused to meet with the PLO, and the Palestinians have said they won't sit down with the Israelis.

Disaster In Hiding

Over the years a number of stories have surfaced to the effect that the Soviet Union has suffered at least one major nuclear disaster in its march to develop a nuclear technology. The difficulty in proving any event which occurs in a closed society has left these stories unverified.

If American intelligence can confirm the facts of the situation, it has not done so publicly. But eventually the truth will surface, especially from a land which produces a growing army of exiles.

So it is that a former Soviet physicist, Leo Thurnerman, now a resident of Israel, has confirmed that he saw the remains of a nuclear disaster in the foothills of the southern Urals in the late 1950s. Professor Thurnerman tells of total devastation and high radioactivity "for many hundreds of square kilometers."

Not a pretty story, but even uglier is the type of mentality which would try to hide such a calamity all these years.

Leadership

By JIM BISHOP

Two sentences started John F. Kennedy up the political ladder. He had returned from the war and ran for Congress. He was skinny, uncertain, hesitant. Some said he stammered. It wasn't that. He had a habit of saying half a sentence and permitting the rest to die in silence.

His father told him to seek the help of Dave Powers. Baldy was a small cog among Massachusetts pols. He lived in a third floor flat. Kennedy hopped the steps and knocked on a kitchen door. It was night. A small yellow bulb in the hall fought the darkness and lost. Dave opened the door.

When he heard that it was Joe Kennedy's kid, he said, "Come on in." John explained his ambition to run for Congress. Powers nodded. "Okay," he said. "Let's see how you do on your feet. We have a neighborhood rally of Gold Star Mothers next week. Tell them you want their votes."

The speech was a disaster. The stout ladies sat with arms folded listening to a young man trying to say something. "I think that-ah-if I am elected-ah..." He fumbled, sputtered a phrase, stopped, stared at the ceiling and appeared to be in pain.

Powers was in the rear of the hall, holding his head in his hands. Suddenly, two sentences emerged from that Irish kisser intact. "I think I know how you ladies feel," John F. said. "You see, my mother lost a son in the war." The women tore the place up with applause.

It was those two sentences which saved the night. It was that applause which encouraged Kennedy to go on, to study speech, to become a Congressman, a Senator, a President.

Harry Truman, on the other hand, never had trouble with words. He spoke flat out. Not the finest words, but easily the most direct. Mr. Truman had the diplomacy of a mad elephant in heat. Some of the sparks he struck off in the Oval Office had enough energy to light a small city.

He was making an afternoon speech in the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Truman and a lady friend sat behind the lectern listening. Bess had been to the language wars many times with Harry, and she squeezed her girl friend's hand as the President spoke. She hoped he'd get through one speech without using a naughty word.

However, in defending the broadening power of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the President became conscious of Republican criticism. His pale eyes began to snap behind the prisms of his glasses. His anger rose to fury.

"They don't know what they're talking about," he said. "They haven't studied the problems nor the solutions. What they're feeding the American public - you - is a pile of manure."

The audience broke into applause. Mrs. Truman began to fan herself with a program. Her girl friend leaned over and whispered, "When you get home you should have a talk with Harry about using horrid words like that."

"No, no," Mrs. Truman said feebly. "You don't understand. It took me 25 years to get him to say manure."

The most eloquent speaker of the 20th century was, beyond argument, Winston Churchill. He had the ability to marshal a precise order of words in his head and to call upon them, one by one, to do their duty.

He could carve a liquid waterfall of phrases out of desert rock. There was one occasion - never publicized - when he became beautifully expressive without using any words.

It happened in early 1941. Churchill arranged a secret meeting with President Franklin Roosevelt. Edward Stettinius had a big house on the Florida coast near Boca Raton. The British Prime Minister arrived by warship and landed from the sea in an admiral's barge.

Roosevelt made it by train. Secret

Dear Editor:

What do we say to a fine group of Volunteer firemen when thanks is not nearly enough. There are many sound offs and write ups when the mistakes and disagreements are made but how often do we take the time for gratitude when our needs have been fulfilled by these men. Here is our opportunity to do so. We would like for each member of the Ashville-Harrison Volunteer Department to be recognized for their quickness, pleasantness and respectfulness. A very Merry Christmas and prosperous New Year to them.

Dear Editor:

I understand a hearing was scheduled 11 a.m. today at the court house. I understand that it was to do with the pending injunction upon the issue of the sale of alcoholic beverages in the township.

The very idea of having such an injunction go through is an insult on voter intelligence, a smear on voter integrity, and an intrusion upon my right to vote.

It seems to me that the real issue at stake here is not merely the sale of alcoholic beverages but it is the right to vote.

If the voters right to cast a vote is not firm by a margin then it is not firm by any margin. If the constitution cannot guarantee the rule of the majority voter even if there is only one, then it cannot guarantee anything.

We are not talking of our nations number one problem of all age groups. We are not talking about our number one cause of fatal automobile accidents. We are not speaking of the matter of the employment of a few more people or of tax money revenues or of wrecked lives of people.

We are talking about our right to vote. If we begin in any way, in any level of our government, in any degree, on any issue to either relinquish or defend our voting rights, then tell me what shall we do with old glory? Shall we put holes in her for our enemies?

We must be patriotically big enough to accept a voter yea or nay on any issue.

The injunction is an insult on voter intelligence because it insinuates we did not vote intelligently. I will have you know that I indeed can read and decide for myself quite well, thank you.

I registered, I voted.

Find More Pipeline Problems

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. says it is confident its plans for preventing corrosion-caused leaks on the trans-Alaska pipeline will work, despite newly disclosed flaws in the anticorrosion material.

The state Pipeline Coordinator's office disclosed Monday that it has found flaws in the anticorrosion system on the $8-billion pipeline.

These flaws were considered potentially more serious than previously reported welding deficiencies, because in the past corrosion has caused more leaks in existing pipelines than defective welds.

Gordon Tyree of the coordinator's office said the anticorrosion flaws were found when sections of buried pipe were dug out to repair defective welds.

He also said there was no reason these flaws should delay the opening of the pipeline. The only way to tell whether there are leaks is for the pipeline to begin operation, he said.

But he also said that if the anticorrosion system failed, Alyeska might have to dig up some sections of pipe — a job that could add millions of dollars to the cost of the pipeline.

A spokesman for Alyeska, the consortium of oil companies building the 800-mile line, said that no problems are foreseen with the anticorrosion system, but any that developed would be repaired.

The basic anticorrosion method used for the 400 miles of buried pipe involved insulating the pipe with a special tape. The coordinator's office said it found that some of this tape was damaged either when the pipe was buried originally or when it was excavated to check for weld flaws.

Alyeska said its backup system could handle any such breaks in the tape. This system uses zinc anodes to attract like a magnet the corrosive elements that might damage the pipe. The anodes are in a circuit running beneath the pipe, but not touching it.

The coordinator's office said, however, that this electrolytic system remains unproven. Tyree said it was possible that when the warm oil heats the pipe in the frozen soil the whole process could be reversed — thus accelerating the corrosion.

Speaking Of Your Health

I recently had a silicone implant in my chin. The plastic surgeon that performed the operation assured me that it was 100 per cent safe. I read the other day that silicone injections are dangerous. Now I am worried, puzzled and stuck with it.

Mrs. P. I., Maine

Dear Mrs. I.:

The use of a solution of silicone for injection into the breasts to make them larger has been discontinued.

It is now used only when in a protective plastic gel that prevents foreign body reactions in the soft tissue.

Undoubtedly, the plastic implant in your chin is of the safe type. This will cause no foreign body reaction. You may be assured that your plastic surgeon would not have used this type of implant if there were any possibility that it would be harmful to you.

I'm 26 and have had repeated attacks of throat infection. My tonsils and the glands in the neck become swollen. Otherwise my health is normal. Can you tell me if these infections can permanently harm me? Mrs. S. I., B.C.

Dear Mrs. I.:

Repeated infections of the tonsils associated with swollen glands of the neck are not life-threatening infections. Nevertheless, attention should be paid to the possibility of removing the tonsils in an effort to reduce the frequency, the severity, the duration and the possible complications of these infections.

At 26 there is no danger in the operation. The recovery period is rapid and uncomplicated. After consultation with your doctor, the advice of a throat specialist should be sought. It is best for him to see you when you are both free of infection and when you are having an attack. In this way, he can best evaluate the need for surgery.

NEW YORK (AP) — For about 11 years now, the peaks of the Dow Jones Industrial Average have drawn a ragged but rather steady line, generally in the mid to upper 900s.

That's where the summit was late in 1965. That's where it was in 1967, in 1969, in 1971. That's where it is today; the early Tuesday reading was around 970, less than 25 points higher than in January.

The big exception, the Everest that towers above all during this period, was the 1052 points in 1972, before the end in Vietnam, before the oil-price spurt, before the confidence-destroying Watergate revelations.

And now you can hear investors beginning to talk it up again.

Vietnam is out of the way, they say, and so is Watergate. We may be getting inflation under reasonable control. Interest rates are almost back down to where they belong, not up at 12 per cent where they compete with stocks.

Down on the street they seem to have things under better control. A lot of the swindlers are gone and so are the operators of those dumpy shops that stacked their customers securities in shoe boxes and then lost the boxes.

There's a new public too. Millions of the uninitiated, the unscarred, the naive have grown to maturity and seem anxious to test their investing skills. They are curious, tempted, probably eager and even greedy.

Unlike their fathers and uncles and older brothers and sisters, they have no memories of the chaos, the hucksterism, the false promises, the assault and battery of individuals by the in-out trading of institutions.

Instead, they see opportunity: Stocks of major corporations that have attracted little interest for years; vital companies with low price-earnings ratios; potential growth stocks of the future.

They may be warned, but the warnings issue from the bad experiences of their elders, not from their own. They have never had a bad trip; they never have had the experience, and someone else's won't substitute.

And then there is the new president, arriving on a scene of economic stagnation and promising to get things moving again, by fiscal stimuli, by new programs, by convincing Americans that better times are possible and likely.

The leadership factor cannot be underestimated, or at least you can be led to that belief by the comments you hear in the business community. "The best stimulus he can provide is to restore confidence," is typical.

For whatever reasons it is difficult to say, but the truth is that no sector of the economy really wanted to march out ahead and invite the others to follow during the past few years.

But now there could be a change — that's what a lot of people seem to be saying. They seem to believe that a new collective perspective could be developing, one that looks ahead, wants change and might be able to produce it.

Everything is an ingredient in a new outlook, but perhaps nothing is more catalytic than leadership that convinces people we really are headed for better times.

It's a big job for Mr. Carter.

Gilmore Won't Seek Release

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Condemned killer Gary Gilmore will not seek release on a legal technicality but wait until death penalty opponents make a move to block his Jan. 17-date with a five-member firing squad, his attorney says.

Gilmore was returned to a maximum security cell at the Utah State Prison on Monday after a brief stay at the prison's infirmary where he was recuperating from a second drug overdose in as many months.

Warden Samuel Smith said changes have been made to prevent similar overdose incidents. Previously, Gilmore has had contact with other inmates and was checked every 30 minutes. Now, Gilmore is guarded continuously and is separated from other inmates by vacant cells, Smith said.

In both overdose incidents, the 36-year-old inmate was found unconscious in maximum security during morning checks.

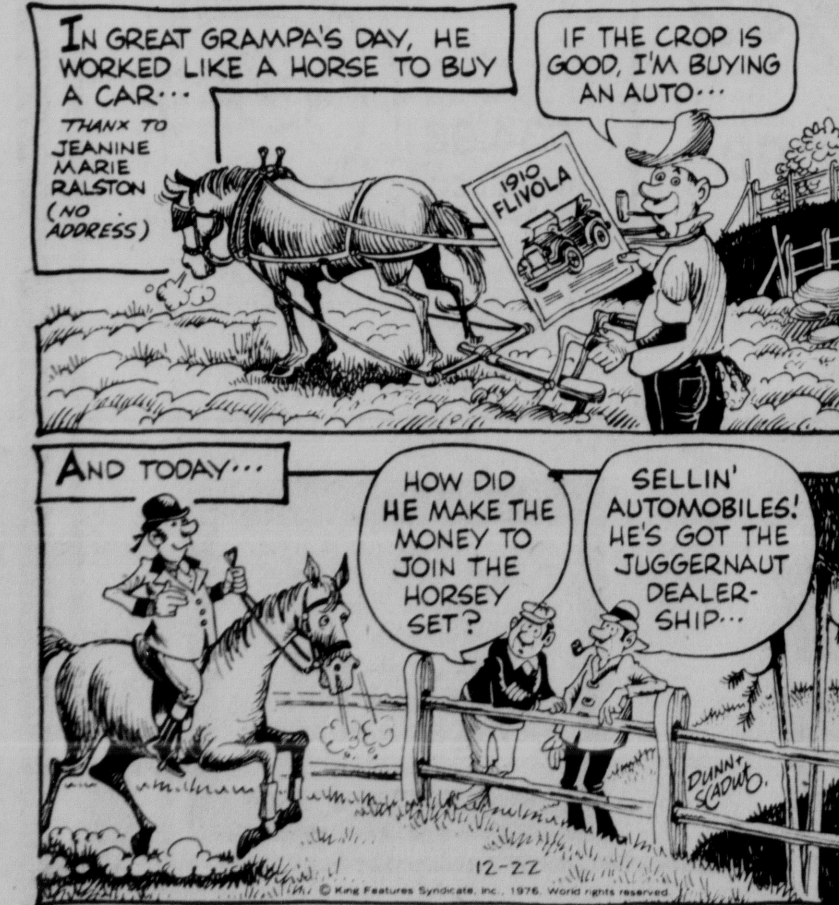

Gilmore's attorney Ronald Stanger said his client has decided not to file a writ of habeas corpus in federal court seeking his release because he was not executed within the 30-60 days from sentencing required by Utah law.

Stanger quoted Gilmore as saying, "I want to wait and see what anyone else does," referring to attempts to stay his execution.

The attorney also quoted Gilmore as saying, "I'm looking forward to the 17th and wish it were here quicker." Over Gilmore's protests, two other execution dates were delayed by stays.

Earlier, Stanger had said Gilmore wanted the writ filed because he didn't want to wait another month for the execution. A similar writ of habeas corpus was rejected by Utah's 4th District Court last week.

Disaster In Hiding

Over the years a number of stories have surfaced to the effect that the Soviet Union has suffered at least one major nuclear disaster in its march to develop a nuclear technology. The difficulty in proving any event which occurs in a closed society has left these stories unverified.

If American intelligence can confirm the facts of the situation, it has not done so publicly. But eventually the truth will surface, especially from a land which produces a growing army of exiles.

So it is that a former Soviet physicist, Leo Thurnerman, now a resident of Israel, has confirmed that he saw the remains of a nuclear disaster in the foothills of the southern Urals in the late 1950s. Professor Thurnerman tells of total devastation and high radioactivity "for many hundreds of square kilometers."

Not a pretty story, but even uglier is the type of mentality which would try to hide such a calamity all these years.

Leadership

By JIM BISHOP

Two sentences started John F. Kennedy up the political ladder. He had returned from the war and ran for Congress. He was skinny, uncertain, hesitant. Some said he stammered. It wasn't that. He had a habit of saying half a sentence and permitting the rest to die in silence.

His father told him to seek the help of Dave Powers. Baldy was a small cog among Massachusetts politicians. He lived in a third floor flat. Kennedy hopped the steps and knocked on a kitchen door. It was night. A small yellow bulb in the hall fought the darkness and lost. Dave opened the door.

When he heard that it was Joe Kennedy's kid, he said, "Come on in." John explained his ambition to run for Congress. Powers nodded. "Okay," he said, "let's see how you do on your feet. We have a neighborhood rally of Gold Star Mothers next week. Tell them you want their votes."

The speech was a disaster. The stout ladies sat with arms folded listening to a young man trying to say something. "I think that-ah-if I am elected-ah..." He fumbled, sputtered a phrase, stopped, stared at the ceiling and appeared to be in pain.

Powers was in the rear of the hall, holding his head in his hands. Suddenly, two sentences emerged from that Irish kisser intact. "I think I know how you ladies feel," John F. said. "You see, my mother lost a son in the war." The women tore the place up with applause.

It was those two sentences which saved the night. It was that applause which encouraged Kennedy to go on, to study speech, to become a Congressman, a Senator, a President.

Harry Truman, on the other hand, never had trouble with words. He spoke flat out. Not the finest words, but easily the most direct. Mr. Truman had the diplomacy of a mad elephant in heat. Some of the sparks he struck off in the Oval Office had enough energy to light a small city.

He was making an afternoon speech in the Mayflower Hotel. Mrs. Truman and a lady friend sat behind the lectern listening. Bess had been to the language wars many times with Harry, and she squeezed her girl friend's hand as the President spoke. She hoped he'd get through one speech without using a naughty word.

However, in defending the broadening power of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the President became conscious of Republican criticism. His pale eyes began to snap behind the prisms of his glasses. His anger rose to fury.

"They don't know what they're talking about," he said. "They haven't studied the problems nor the solutions. What they're feeding the American public - you - is a pile of manure."

The audience broke into applause. Mrs. Truman began to fan herself with a program. Her girl friend leaned over and whispered, "When you get home you should have a talk with Harry about using horrid words like that."

"No, no," Mrs. Truman said feebly. "You don't understand. It took me 25 years to get him to say manure."

The most eloquent speaker of the 20th century was, beyond argument, Winston Churchill. He had the ability to marshal a precise order of words in his head and to call upon them, one by one, to do their duty.

He could carve a liquid waterfall of phrases out of desert rock. There was one occasion - never publicized - when he became beautifully expressive without using any words.

It happened in early 1941. Churchill arranged a secret meeting with President Franklin Roosevelt. Edward Stettinius had a big house on the Florida coast near Boca Raton. The British Prime Minister arrived by warship and landed from the sea in an admiral's barge.

Roosevelt made it by train. Secret

Service men were stationed on the beach north and south and west of the mansion. Howard Anderson drew the north side at dawn. He was standing on the sand when he saw an apparition on the porch.

It was a nude Kewpie doll with a cigar. The Prime Minister, it seemed, was about to take a dip. He waddled down the steps, puffing and looking, and walked into the surf.

Chest deep he turned to study the house. A large wave hit him in the back of the head and crashed him face down in the sand. He got up sputtering, sand on his nose, the cigar busted.

He walked back up to the house. Somehow, he had to get even with the Atlantic Ocean. He turned and faced it. He pressed his thumb against his nose and wiggled his fingers...

Over Gilmore's protests, two other execution dates were delayed by stays. Earlier, Stanger had said Gilmore wanted the writ filed because he didn't want to wait another month for the execution. A similar writ of habeas corpus was rejected by Utah's 4th District Court last week.

Sulfur Standards Worrying Groups

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ohio's coal industry might not be able to survive the stringent sulfur dioxide standards proposed by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), industry spokesmen said here Tuesday.

A delegation of about 20 members of United Mine Workers locals in southeastern Ohio testified in a state EPA hearing on sulfur emission controls.

"We believe in clean air," said Wendell Johnston of Wellston, an employee of Southern Coal Co. "But we don't want to lose our jobs."

Numerous industry officials said because of the high sulfur content of Ohio's coal, the tough federal regulations were not reasonable in this state, and would force coal firms out of business. Ohio presently has no sulfur dioxide emission regulation.

If federal regulations are enforced in Ohio, requiring utilities to use low-sulfur content coal, the state economy could suffer a loss of up to $700 million, said John Guzek, UMW District 6 president.

Patricia Smith, an environmentalist from the Northern Ohio Lung Association, suggested sulfur be removed before burning the coal, or employing a scrub technique to rid the smoke of sulfur dioxide.

Harold L. Williams, an executive of Cleveland Illuminating Co., said even the least expensive way to meet sulfur standards—finding a new lowsulfur coal supply—"would cost rate payers $91 million a year, equivalent to a rate increase of 13 per cent." He added the tough federal standards could put 1,800 industry employees out of work.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Cleveland Division of Air Pollution Control, Thomas J. Kinder, confirmed the need for controls, saying the city's "air quality is not good."

"We cannot and will not permit our jobs to go down the drain without a fight," said Bill Schmelzenback of Beverly, a miner for Central Ohio Coal Co. "We ask you to count the costs. We beg of you to set sulfur dioxide standards at a realistic figure."

The hearing, designed by the EPA to give industry spokesmen a chance to comment on the proposed control, was the second of four held around Ohio. State EPA officials said if industries can prove the proposed standards are too stringent, the state will modify its standards.

The American Speech and Hearing Assn. is a national scientific and professional organization of speech pathologists and audiologists with some 24,000 members nationwide.

Utility Reform Group Making New Effort

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans for Utility Reform (OUR), sponsors of four illfated ballot issues, may yet see one of the proposals become law.

OUR has served notice it will be around to pick up the pieces as a lobbying group when the 112th General Assembly convenes next month.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, who remained silent on the defeated ballot proposals, and representatives of electric utilities, have said that a modified version of the "lifeline" issue may be feasible.

Under "lifeline" rates, residential consumers are guaranteed minimum bloc amounts of electricity at moderate rates during winter months.

The proposed constitutional amendment drafted by OUR would have made the bloc rates available to all residential electric customers. Issue 4 got just under 35 per cent of the vote, but still fared better than the other three OUR issues in the Nov. 2 election.

Rhodes said he would earmark $50 million in his next two-year budget to offer rate relief to the elderly and those on fixed incomes, including welfare clients. Part of the program could be administered by the Department of Public Welfare, the governor said.

On the same day that Rhodes outlined his plan, electric company officials met privately with representatives of a number of interest groups, including AFL-CIO, the farm bureau and the League of Women Voters.

specifics but there was sentiment for rate relief geared to the needs of individual customers and financed by state and federal sources.

Rhodes has said he hoped the incoming Carter Administration would match the state's $50 million with federal dollars.

The utility meeting also considered the possibility of issuing energy vouchers or certificates, along the lines of a program already instituted by Toledo Edison.

More meetings were planned and a "firm commitment" to some sort of rate relief plan was promised in a statement issued after the session.

The prospect of even a modified "lifeline" plan delighted the OUR organization which said "the governor appears to exhibit a real concern for low income people."

But an OUR statement also scoffed at the utility-sponsored meeting, saying "the greedy utilities hope to silence poor people and senior citizens by offering them public assistance, while at the same time enriching the utilities' own coffers at public expense.

"Ohioans for Utility Reform emphasizes that welfare assistance is important, but it is not utility reform," the statement said. "OUR will seek the governor's support."

3 Children Rescued From Fire

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three small Cincinnati children were saved from an apartment fire Tuesday when they were dropped into the arms of a passerby.

The youngsters ranged in age from five years to four months. They were caught by Claude Parton, a steeple jack who was shopping in a building beneath the apartment that caught fire.

"There was nothing else to do," said the mother, Carol Young. Rescued were her children Renee, 5; Donnie, 3; and Tara, fourth months.

The rescue occurred in Mohawk, a section in north Cincinnati. The blaze began above a delicatessen located beneath the apartments.

Parton said he rushed outside when the lights went out in the delicatessen and spotted smoke billowing out of the building above.

The children were dropped from a rear window, a distance of about 10 feet since the apartment unit was built into a hillside.

"We had to think about getting the children out the fastest way," said Mrs. Young.

The father of the youngest child, Harry Gibson, said he smelled smoke and tried to open the door leading to the hallway. After being turned back by heavy smoke, he went to the window.

"I knew that I couldn't take the kids down the stairway," Gibson said. He broke out a window, caught Parton's attention and asked him to catch each child.

"I was scared, especially when the baby was thrown," said Parton.

No one was injured in the three-alarm blaze, according to firemen. Damage to the apartment unit was estimated at $32,000, according to Acting Fire Chief Edward Avey.

Purity Chapter OES Installs New Officers

Purity Chapter 65, Order of Eastern Star, held its annual installation of officers Saturday evening in the New Holland, Masonic Temple. Hints of the holiday season were evident with decorations placed throughout the hall.

Mrs. Gene Stonerock, worthy matron welcomed everyone and presented the following honored guests: Miss Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, Mrs. Marvin Thornburg, past grand matron and Mrs. Kay Ritenour, deputy grand matron, District 23. Twelve past matrons and five past patrons of Purity Chapter were welcomed as were worthy matrons and worthy patrons of other chapters. Mrs. Stonerock thanked her officers and all who had helped her during the year.

John Craig was the installing officer assisted by Mrs. Delbert Remy and Mrs. Harold H. Thompson, installing marshals, Mrs. Roger Whitley, installing conductress, Mrs. Florence McGhee, installing chaplain, Mrs. John Craig, installing organist, Harold H. Thompson, installing warder and George Hackenbrach, installing sentinel. Mrs. Clifford Hughes, was the installing marshal.

The 1977 officers are Mrs. R. C. Boyd, worthy matron; Eugene Bush, worthy patron; Mrs. Leonard Watts, associate matron; Leonard Watts, associate patron; Mrs. Stonerock, secretary; Mrs. Eugene Bush, treasurer; Miss Renee Satchell, conductress; Mrs. Debbie Carr, associate conductress; Mrs. Hughes, chaplain; Paul Morris, marshal; Mrs. Sharon McPherson, organist; Mrs. Mabel Penisten, Adah; Mrs. Larry Lehman, Ruth; Mrs. Errol Black, Esther; Mrs. Robert Satchell, Martha; Mrs. Lee A. Rowe, Electa; Mrs. William Woods, warder and Harry Morris, sentinel.

Mrs. Stonerock, junior past matron, and Craig Stonerock, junior past patron, were presented gifts from the chapter by Mrs. Remy.

It was announced that the past matrons would hold a party Jan. 15 at Wardell's Party Home. Remarks were made by Miss Hamilton complimenting the chapter on the installation.

A tea table centered with an arrangement of holly, red carnations and lighted tapers held the refreshments for the evening. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Black.

Practical Nurses Hold Annual Holiday Meeting

Licensed Practical Nurses Assn. of Pickaway County held its annual Christmas meeting in the home of Mrs. Clark McFarland, 20035 Fox Road, with Mrs. Charles (Joan) Savage as hostess.

The home was decorated in keeping with the Christmas Season. Gifts for exchange were placed under the Christmas tree.

A carry-in dinner was served in the dining room at the table holding a centerpiece of mums and Christmas ornaments in the shape of a Christmas tree.

Elected to serve as officers for the coming year were: Mrs. Clark McFarland, president; Mrs. Carl L. Smith, vice-president; Mrs. Marguerite Stevenson, secretary; Mrs. Paul Hill, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Bowman, Mrs. Pauline Russell and Mrs. Joan Savage, ways and means, and Mrs. Joan Savage and Mrs. Pug Jackson, flowers.

The principal project for the year was the purchase of two bedside commodes for Berger Hospital. A basket of food was given to a needy family for Thanksgiving.

Others present were Mrs. Margie Congrove, Mrs. Gayle Hart, Mrs. Carla Hart, Mrs. Joanne Eby, Mrs. Joyce Devors and Miss Jodi Anne Savage.

There will be no more meetings until March.

Historical Society Special Exhibits Now At Museum

Two special exhibits in the Miller Pontius Room of the Pickaway County Museum will be of interest to both children and adults. Parents and leaders of youth groups are encouraged to bring their children or clubs to see these exhibits during December and January.

The museum is open on Wednesdays and Sundays from 2-4 p.m. when tour guides will explain the displays.

One display shows historic toys and dolls from different eras includes miniature furniture, mechanical toys, games and musical instruments. Another colorful exhibit features international costumed dolls from many countries including Europe, British Isles, Asia, Africa, Caribbean Islands and Latin America.

Members of the Historical Society who have loaned articles for the exhibits are: Harriet Morris, Mrs. Peggy Smith, Walter Denman, Mrs. Edward Wolf, Blenn Stevenson, Dwight Steele, Mrs. Harold Clifton, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Gwinn, Ned A. Dresbach, Mary Katherine May, Mrs. Joseph Adkins, Mrs. Richard Simkins, Elizabeth Tobert and Mary Ruth Tolbert.

These exhibits can also be seen at the museum at the open house on Dec. 28, from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

Woman Scholar No Admirer Of Benefactor

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Sue Halpern says Cecil Rhodes has never been one of her heroes. Now that she's a Rhodes Scholar — in the first batch of women ever selected — she hopes "to rectify some of the problems he created."

Ms. Halpern, a Yale University senior, was one of 13 women among 32 American college students chosen Sunday by the Rhodes Scholarship Trust. The prestigious scholarships for study at Oxford University in England, are financed by money left in Rhodes' will. He died in 1902.

Rhodes, who was British, gained control of a South African diamond mine in the 1880s and made a fortune. He became active in colonial politics and forced African tribesmen to surrender large territories to the British Empire. Rhodesia is named after him.

"The fact that I might be going to school financed on money that came out of the diamond mines of South Africa doesn't make me happy," said Ms. Halpern. "I don't fancy myself as a neoimperialist or neocolonialist." But the political philosophy major added that with persons like herself using money from Rhodes' estate to study, "I think we will be able to rectify some of the problems he created."

The 32 American students will join Rhodes Scholars from 16 other countries. Contestants from the United States must be U.S. citizens, between the ages of 18 and 24 and unmarried. Until this year, they had to be male. Scholars are free to study anything offered at Oxford. Most spend two years there, receiving an annual stipend of $5,300.

Ms. Halpern said she will continue studying political philosophy, especially the works of Jean Jacques Rousseau, the 18th century French philosopher who helped inspire the French Revolution.

Guild 52 Meets In Foley Home

Berger Hospital Guild 52 met recently for its December meeting and secret sister gift exchange in the home of Mrs. Reagan Foley, 582 Douglas Drive. New names for secret sisters were drawn by the 11 members present.

Co-hostess for the evening was Mrs. Fred Kennedy. Mrs. Mazanowski was auctioneer for articles not sold at the Christmas Bazaar.

If a recipe calls for sherry and doesn't specify whether the sherry should be dry, medium or sweet it's safest to use medium sherry.

LaSertoma Club Announces Winners Of Raffle Prizes

Pickaway Plains LaSertoma Club announces the winners of the drawing held Friday evening. They are Mrs. Mary Walker, 4610 McLean Mill Road, first prize of $50. and Merle Schlosser, 9095 Broadway, Stoutsville, second prize, a 15 pound turkey. Proceeds from the raffle will benefit the club's sponsorships.

Hospital Employees Feted At Dinner

Employees of Berger Hospital held a Christmas Dinner and gift exchange recently at the Buccaneer Restaurant in Lancaster. Arrangements for the event were made by Cheryl Harter.

The January meeting will be held in the home of Linda Dunkel, Dunkel Road.

In an effort to keep society news current, The Herald has established the following policy concerning wedding news:

Wedding forms may be obtained at The Herald from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and until noon on Saturday.

It would be helpful to have the wedding form completed and returned with a picture three days before the wedding.

The Herald will make every effort to publish the story and picture on the next day of publication following the wedding providing the forms and picture are returned before the wedding.

Purity Chapter OES Installs New Officers

Purity Chapter 65, Order of Eastern Star, held its annual installation of officers Saturday evening in the New Holland, Masonic Temple. Hints of the holiday season were evident with decorations placed throughout the hall.

Mrs. Gene Stonerock, worthy matron welcomed everyone and presented the following honored guests: Miss Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, Mrs. Marvin Thornburg, past grand matron and Mrs. Kay Ritenour, deputy grand matron, District 23. Twelve past matrons and five past patrons of Purity Chapter were welcomed as were worthy matrons and worthy patrons of other chapters. Mrs. Stonerock thanked her officers and all who had helped her during the year.

John Craig was the installing officer assisted by Mrs. Delbert Remy and Mrs. Harold H. Thompson, installing marshals, Mrs. Roger Whitley, installing conductress, Mrs. Florence McGhee, installing chaplain, Mrs. John Craig, installing organist, Harold H. Thompson, installing warder and George Hackenbracht, installing sentinel. Mrs. Clifford Hughes, was the installing marshal.

The 1977 officers are Mrs. R. C. Boyd, worthy matron; Eugene Bush, worthy patron; Mrs. Leonard Watts, associate matron; Leonard Watts,

Derby Garden Club Tours Decorated Homes Of Members

Derby Garden Club members recently toured the holiday decorated homes of Jan Stover, Jane Vance and Shirley McPherson, before going to the home of Phyllis Kohli for a short business meeting and refreshments. During the business meeting, Lois Rouff, president, reported approximately 21 fruit baskets were distributed to Derby senior residents before Thanksgiving by the club.

Announcement was made of the open house and tour of the Pickaway County Museum sponsored by the Historical Society. Derby Garden Club will furnish two floral arrangements for the event. Wilma Beerman, junior garden club chairman, reported on organization plans.

Symbols and legends of Christmas plants was presented by Carolyn Ohenewehr. Her information came from a 1956 issue of Christmas Ideals and the 1956 Christmas Annual.

Serving on the refreshment committee were Jan Stover, Geraldine McPherson, Lois Rouff and Buelah Ashcraft, assisted by Phyllis Kohli.

Ray Taylor, District Technician of Pickaway County Soil and Water Conservation, will give a talk on "Do's And Don'ts Of Home Gardening" at the Jan. 10 meeting in the Derby Methodist Church.

Veterans Treated With Holiday Party By Auxiliary

A fifty-five year tradition was continued Monday evening when Unit 134 American Legion Auxiliary entertained patients of Ward 1C, Veterans Administration Hospital, Chillicothe with a party. Homemade cookies, donated by Betty Sabine, Mrs. Wayne Stonerock and Betty Woods, ice cream, punch and homemade candy were served to 25 patients by Mary Stephens, VA&R chairman, assisted by unit members Maggie Mavis, Roseann Stinson, Lola McClarren, Betty Sabine and Betty Woods.

Also present to assist was William McClarren of Hall-Adkins Post American Legion 134.

Santa Claus (William McClarren) arrived distributing fruit trays to each patient and presented the ward an electric razor from the unit.

The unit expressed appreciation to those who contributed apples, cookies, candy and money to help make the party a success.

In an effort to keep society news current, The Herald has established the following policy concerning wedding news:

Wedding forms may be obtained at The Herald from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and until noon on Saturday.

It would be helpful to have the wedding form completed and returned with a picture three days before the wedding.

The Herald will make every effort to publish the story and picture on the next day of publication following the wedding providing the forms and picture are returned before the wedding.

associate patron; Mrs. Stonerock, secretary; Mrs. Eugene Bush, treasurer; Miss Renee Satchell, conductress; Mrs. Debbie Carr, associate conductress; Mrs. Hughes, chaplain; Paul Morris, marshal; Mrs. Sharon McPherson, organist; Mrs. Mabel Peniston, Adah; Mrs. Larry Lehman, Ruth; Mrs. Errol Black, Esther; Mrs. Robert Satchell, Martha; Mrs. Lee A. Rowe, Electa; Mrs. William Woods, warder and Harry Morris, sentinel.

Mrs. Stonerock, junior past matron, and Craig Stonerock, junior past patron, were presented gifts from the chapter by Mrs. Remy.

It was announced that the past matrons would hold a party Jan. 15 at Wardell's Party Home. Remarks were made by Miss Hamilton complimenting the chapter on the installation.

A tea table centered with an arrangement of holly, red carnations and lighted tapers held the refreshments for the evening. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Black.

Practical Nurses Hold Annual Holiday Meeting

Licensed Practical Nurses Assn. of Pickaway County held its annual Christmas meeting in the home of Mrs. Clark McFarland, 20035 Fox Road, with Mrs. Charles (Joan) Savage as hostess.

The home was decorated in keeping with the Christmas Season. Gifts for exchange were placed under the Christmas tree.

A carry-in dinner was served in the dining room at the table holding a centerpiece of mums and Christmas ornaments in the shape of a Christmas tree.

Elected to serve as officers for the coming year were: Mrs. Clark McFarland, president; Mrs. Carl L. Smith, vice-president; Mrs. Marguerite Stevenson, secretary; Mrs. Paul Hill, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Bowman, Mrs. Pauline Russell and Mrs. Joan Savage, ways and means, and Mrs. Joan Savage and Mrs. Pug Jackson, flowers.

The principal project for the year was the purchase of two bedside commodes for Berger Hospital. A basket of food was given to a needy family for Thanksgiving.

Others present were Mrs. Margie Congrove, Mrs. Gayle Hart, Mrs. Carla Hart, Mrs. Joanne Eby, Mrs. Joyce Devors and Miss Jodi Anne Savage.

There will be no more meetings until March.

Historical Society Special Exhibits Now At Museum

Two special exhibits in the Miller Pontius Room of the Pickaway County Museum will be of interest to both children and adults. Parents and leaders of youth groups are encouraged to bring their children or clubs to see these exhibits during December and January.

The museum is open on Wednesdays and Sundays from 2-4 p.m. when tour guides will explain the displays.

One display shows historic toys and dolls from different eras includes miniature furniture, mechanical toys, games and musical instruments. Another colorful exhibit features international costumed dolls from many countries including Europe, British Isles, Asia, Africa, Caribbean Islands and Latin America.

Members of the Historical Society who have loaned articles for the exhibits are: Harriet Morris, Mrs. Peggy Smith, Walter Denman, Mrs. Edward Wolf, Blenn Stevenson, Dwight Steele, Mrs. Harold Clifton, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Gwinn, Ned A. Dresbach, Mary Katherine May, Mrs. Joseph Adkins, Mrs. Richard Sinkins, Elizabeth Tobert and Mary Ruth Tolbert.

These exhibits can also be seen at the museum at the open house on Dec. 28, from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

Woman Scholar No Admirer Of Benefactor

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Sue Halpern says Cecil Rhodes has never been one of her heroes. Now that she's a Rhodes Scholar — in the first batch of women ever selected — she hopes "to rectify some of the problems he created."

Mrs. Halpern, a Yale University senior, was one of 13 women among 32 American college students chosen Sunday by the Rhodes Scholarship Trust. The prestigious scholarships for study at Oxford University in England, are financed by money left in Rhodes' will. He died in 1902.

Rhodes, who was British, gained control of a South African diamond mine in the 1880s and made a fortune. He became active in colonial politics and forced African tribesmen to surrender large territories to the British Empire. Rhodesia is named after him.

"The fact that I might be going to school financed on money that came out of the diamond mines of South Africa doesn't make me happy," said Mrs. Halpern. "I don't fancy myself as a neoimperialist or neocolonialist." But the political philosophy major added that with persons like herself using money from Rhodes' estate to study, "I think we will be able to rectify some of the problems he created."

The 32 American students will join Rhodes Scholars from 16 other countries. Contestants from the United States must be U.S. citizens, between the ages of 18 and 24 and unmarried. Until this year, they had to be male.

Scholars are free to study anything offered at Oxford. Most spend two years there, receiving an annual stipend of $5,300.

Mrs. Halpern said she will continue studying political philosophy, especially the works of Jean Jacques Rousseau, the 18th century French philosopher who helped inspire the French Revolution.

Guild 52 Meets In Foley Home

Berger Hospital Guild 52 met recently for its December meeting and secret sister gift exchange in the home of Mrs. Reagan Foley, 582 Douglas Drive. New names for secret sisters were drawn by the 11 members present.

Co-hostess for the evening was Mrs. Fred Kennedy. Mrs. Mazanowski was auctioneer for articles not sold at the Christmas Bazaar.

If a recipe calls for sherry and doesn't specify whether the sherry should be dry, medium or sweet it's safest to use medium sherry.

LaSertoma Club Announces Winners Of Raffle Prizes

Pickaway Plains LaSertoma Club announces the winners of the drawing held Friday evening. They are Mrs. Mary Walker, 4610 McLean Mill Road, first prize of $50, and Merle Schlosser, 9095 Broadway, Stoutsville, second prize, a 15 pound turkey. Proceeds from the raffle will benefit the club's sponsorships.

Hospital Employees Feted At Dinner

Employees of Berger Hospital held a Christmas Dinner and gift exchange recently at the Buccaneer Restaurant in Lancaster. Arrangements for the event were made by Cheryl Harter.

The January meeting will be held in the home of Linda Dunkle, Dunkel Road.

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Attorneys say they'll appeal the second murder convictions of former middleweight boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter and John Artis, who face mandatory life prison sentences next Feb. 2.

Wapakoneta Audit Aired

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The City of Wapakoneta illegally spent $233,252, had to internally transfer $116,096 to bring its books in order and was owed $3,808, State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson said today.

The 136-page audit, for the period Oct. 1, 1972 to Nov. 30, 1975, showed findings for recovery actually totaled $20,022, of which $17,113 was paid during examination of city accounts. The $3,808 was still owed the city from various sources at the close of the audit, Ferguson said.

Regarding the illegal expenditures of $233,252, examiners noted that there were no bids or contracts for numerous projects totaling the amount, as required by Ohio law.

Most of the findings for recovery and all adjustment transfers required resulted from errors in payment and crediting. The findings, made against companies, city officials and employees who were overpaid, were made in favor of city accounts from which the money was paid, Ferguson said.

Sheriff Faces Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Richard Hongisto, the "flowerpower" sheriff, is on trial for refusing to evict 70 tenants from a low-rent residence that new owners want to tear down. If convicted, Hongisto and his assistant could spend five days in their own jail.

The demise of the Chinatown hotel has been hotly opposed by community activists, who contend that the needs of the residents are being ignored.

Hongisto, whose 1975 re-election was based on a coalition of youths, liberals, ethnic minorities and homosexuals, was cited for contempt by Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown on Dec. 1. Brown issued an eviction order last September, giving the sheriff 60 days to clear the hotel and turn it over to its new owners. Hongisto has repeatedly claimed he has neither manpower nor training to remove the residents.

County Jail after a jury of eight men and four women returned the guilty verdicts Tuesday night.

Twenty-two sheriff's officers ringed the courtroom as forewoman Helen LaRocco announced in a barely audible voice that the jury had reached a decision after just over nine hours of deliberations.

A woman in the audience shrieked "No," and began sobbing as the verdicts were read.

Carter and Artis, both of whom are black, sat motionless at the news they had lost a long battle to prove their innocence of what the prosecution said were racially motivated murders of three whites. Two of the jurors were black.

Superior Court Judge Bruno L. Leopizzi set the Feb. 2 date for mandatory life sentencing, but left open the possibility of freedom on bail pending appeals.

"The jury made a decision," said Carter's attorney, Myron Beldock. "We think the decision was wrong and, of course, we'll fight it."

"I don't think much has changed in America," said Lewis Steel, Artis' lawyer. "People still think blacks will kill whites because of race."

But County Prosecutor Burrell I. Humphreys said the guilty verdicts proved "the contest between the American jury system and Madison Avenue is no contest at all" — a reference to the national attention an active defense committee drew to the case.

At a Carter-Artis fund-raising concert at Madison Square Garden earlier this year, singer-composer Bob Dylan performed "Hurricane," a ballad he wrote proclaiming that the boxer had been framed.

The defendants were convicted in 1967 of shooting James Oliver, William Marins and Fred Nauyocks in the Lafayette Bar & Grill here June 17, 1966. The prosecution charged the murders were an act of revenge for the slaying hours earlier of a black barman by a white man in another Paterson bar.

They served nine years in prison before being freed on bail when the state Supreme Court ordered a retrial earlier this year on grounds the prosecution withheld evidence beneficial to the defense in the first trial.

In his charge to the jury, Leopizzi told the panel it had to acquit the pair if it did not believe testimony by Alfred P. Bello, the sole witness to identify Carter and Artis at the murder site.

Bello retracted that identification, but recanted later and again identified the pair during the retrial.

Captive Congregation For LCI Minister

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The Rev. Robert Brown has had a captive congregation for 16 years.

He's seen "hundreds and hundreds" saved and several members of his congregation become ministers.

"But I don't keep records that way," he said. "I let the Lord keep the records in Heaven."

Most of his congregation have a record all their own—a prison record.

The Rev. Mr. Brown is director of religious services and programming at the Lebanon Correctional Institution.

"I preach the same message I preached when I walked in the door in 1960—that a man needs to be born again and have a new life in Christ."

"And it still works. Men are still coming to the Lord."

Many of those in charge of the prison still seek answers to the best way to run things, but the 52-year-old chaplain has found his answers.

He uses what he describes as a "militant, aggressive and challenging approach to spreading the Gospel; loving the sinner, but hating the sin he does."

"I recognize the need for the psychologist and social worker in prison. Education too," he continued. "But we go a bit further. We're preparing a man for eternity and when you do that, you automatically prepare him for proper living in society."

As for prisoners using religion as a means of gaining earlier parole, the Rev. Mr. Brown claims the problem is a common one.

"There aren't any more false professions of faith in here than on the outside," he said. "Inmates are human beings."

"They're just like people on the outside. That's where they came from."

One inmate who accepted his message is now the chaplain's son-in-law.

Tom Garrish first began attending the Rev. Mr. Brown's services in 1966. He met the chaplain's daughter after leaving the institution where he had served 21 months of a 1-20 year term for forgery.

The two were married in 1968. Since then, Garrish, now an ordained Baptist minister, has returned to the institution to fill in for the chaplain when he had a heart attack.

The Rev. Mr. Brown says about 600 of the prison's 2,100 inmates are currently participating in the prison's religious activities.

"We don't use any strongarm tactics," said the chaplain, who calls himself "just an old-fashioned soul-winner."

Lincoln, No Church Member, Deeply Religious

EDITOR'S NOTE: This third installment of a five-part Christmas series on the religion of U.S. presidents. "The Presidents and God," deals with Lincoln's view of God.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Out of his rustic origins, his native wisdom, the Biblical grain of his thinking and the fiery trial of the nation, Abraham Lincoln emerges as the most deeply religious of American presidents.

He never belonged to a church. His faith was not a set of creeds or formulas. But his mind and spirit radiated the fundamental essence of religion, an awareness of acting under the surpassing rightness of the divine will.

"If I can learn what it is, I will do it," he said, subjecting himself—unpretentiously—to it.

He sensed an overruling objective and way to it that he himself could not fully make out. He saw his decisions measured against a sought-for but unclear greater truth. He was a man "under God."

In fact, he first applied those words to the United States in his Gettysburg address in the midst of the Civil War, urging high resolve "that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom." The phrase now tempers the pledge of allegiance.

Lincoln said his aim was to be "an humble instrument in the hands of the Almighty." He disagreed with numerous callers, including clergy, who expressed hope for God to be on "our side." That wasn't Lincoln's concern, he said, "for I know the Lord is always on the side of right."

"But it is my constant anxiety and prayer that I and the nation should be on the Lord's side."

It was a perceptive, submissive distinction, devoid of the self-righteous postures of those presuming to pinpoint God's way. Yet Lincoln's sense of its elusiveness did not to him lessen its mandate on humanity, nor deter him from hard decisions in pursuit of it.

"We can but press on, guided by the best light He gave us, trusting that in His own good time, and wise way, all will yet be well," he said.

A craggy, 6-foot-4 man of brooding melancholy and wry humor, of forbearance and determination, of plain honesty and deep compassion, he saw God's purposes working in the complex events of history, within its mixed fallible motives.

He is "one of the greatest theologians of America," writes Episcopal scholar William J. Wolf, "not in the technical meaning of producing a system of doctrine, but in the sense of seeing the hand of God intimately in the affairs of nations."

To Lincoln, this was not a simple, obvious process, imposed mechanically on the world from without, but working inexorably, inscrutably within it, through the stumbling, ambiguous gropings of humanity.

"The purposes of the Almighty are perfect and must prevail, though we erring mortals may fail to accurately perceive them in advance," he said. At a low point in the war to preserve the Union, he wrote:

"I have desired that all my works and acts be according to His will, and that it might be so, I have sought His aid—but if, after endeavoring to do my best in the light which He affords me, I find my efforts fail, I must believe that for some purposes unknown to me, He wills it otherwise."

"If I had my way, this war would never have been commenced; if I had been allowed my way this war would have ended before this, but we find it still continues; and we must believe that He permits it for some wise purpose of His own, mysterious and unknown to us."

From the days of his backwoods, rustic schooling, in which the reading lessons were from the Bible, he immersed himself in Scriptures, and often had a battered, old family Bible in his hand at the White House.

"It is the best gift God has given to man," he said.

Sometimes called an "atheist" or "baboon infidel," Lincoln was alternately pained or amused by it. He fit no doctrinaire mold, but he dwelt steadily on religious principles, prayed much, and his speeches throbbed with the Hebrew cadences and quotations of Scripture.

"No president has ever had the detailed knowledge of the Bible Lincoln had," writes Wolf in his book, "The Religion of Abraham Lincoln."

"No president has ever woven its thoughts and its rhythms into the warp and woof of his state papers as he did."

Lincoln's perspective was that of the Old Testament prophets. A "latter-day prophet," he has been called. An "American Isaiah" or Amos or Jeremiah. The "Great Emancipator."

The "Great Reconciler." Leo Tolstoy, the famed Russian author of Lincoln's time, was so moved by Lincoln's anguished, dedicated role as to call him "A Christ in miniature."

He came to see slavery as a defiance of God's justice, subject to his judgment in the tragedy of an internecine war that fell on both sides, but whose useful purpose was national reformation.

"The will of God prevails," he often said, yet he claimed no certain knowledge of that will, only a determined striving for it in the conviction that it would succeed, whether he grasped it or not.

He recognized the enigmatic elements involved, the finiteness of human religious views, and also the ironies. He noted that both sides in war claim "to act in accordance with the will of God."

"Both may be, and one must be wrong," he said. "God cannot be for, and against the same thing at the same time." He said God's purpose may differ from that of either side, even though both serve as instrumentalities in effecting his ends.

"Both read the same Bible, and pray to the same God; and each invokes His aid against the other," Lincoln said. "It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's brows. But let us not judge that we be not judged."

"The prayers of both could not be answered; that of neither has been answered fully. The Almighty has his own purposes."

That emancipation proclamation came Jan. 1, 1863 — "a solemn recognition of responsibility before God and before men," Lincoln phrased it.

He himself had long opposed slavery, which he saw as denying God's intended destiny for the nation, a built-in contradiction to the law of its life. In the 1858 campaign debates with Stephen Douglas two years before Lincoln was elected president, he declared:

"My ancient faith teaches me that 'all men are created equal'; and that there can be no moral right in connection with one man's making a slave of another." This, he said, is inherent in "the justice of the Creator to His creatures . . . Nothing stamped with the divine image and likeness was sent into the world to be trodden on, and degraded, and imbruted by its fellows."

Yet Lincoln always expressed sorrow, not condemnation, toward the South in the conflict and was often attacked by radical abolitionists as being too mild.

Born in a Kentucky log cabin, he was reared in poverty. His family soon moved westward into the wilds of Indiana, where his farmer-carpenter father and stepmother helped start the Pigeon Creek Baptist Church, which he attended as a boy.

His total schooling amounted only to about one year, but he read avidly from the Bible and borrowed books — Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Shakespeare, Aesop's Fables. He liked to write antic verses, and put down these lines on the death of a local character, a Kickapoo Indian:

"Here lies poor Johnny Kongapod
Have mercy on him, gracious God
As he would do if he was God
And you were Johnny Kongapod."

The doggerel indicates an aspect of Lincoln's religious conviction which he maintained through his life — that God intended the ultimate salvation of all men—a view most denominations sharply rejected. Lincoln had little use for the frontier fire-and-brimstone preachers, sometimes joking about them.

Moving farther west to Illinois, he split rails, did odd jobs, managed a mill, worked at stores, as a village postmaster, a surveyor, studying on his own for the law. He built a law practice in Springfield. Known as a story-teller, who usually had some folksy tale to make a point, he became a popular figure, served in the state legislature and eventually, in a sectionally torn nation, became president in 1861.

Three months later came the attack on Fort Sumpter, and the four-year war was on. Surely, he wrote later, God "intends some great good to follow this mighty convulsion, which no mortal could make, and no mortal could stay."

Sometimes in the pitch of crises, Lincoln said he would go to his room, lock the door and get down on his knees and pray. His secretary, John Nicolay, reported, "Mr. Lincoln was a praying man." Lincoln's wife, Mary Todd, joined the Presbyterian Church, as she had in Springfield, and he went with her to services, but never joined himself.

Coupled with his worries and serious religious reflections, however, was his humor. He called a laugh "good medicine," and encouraged it with homey anecdotes, including a story attributed to two Quaker women conversing on a train about Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, president of the southern confederacy.

One said, "I think Jefferson will succeed."

"Why does thee think so?" asked the other.

"Because Jefferson is a praying man."

"And so is Abraham a praying man."

"Yes, but the Lord will think Abraham is joking."

In a dark period of the war, Lincoln set April 30, 1863, as a national fast day, his proclamation for it sounding like a passage from the Book of Amos. It called both sides to their knees in repentance for "sins and transgressions" that have brought on the "awful calamity of this civil war."

"We have forgotten God," Lincoln said. "We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us."

But in spite of his anxiety about the nation's fate and grief as the toll of death mounted, Lincoln never lost faith in the ultimate triumph of God's will. "Let us diligently apply the means, never doubting that a just God, in his own good time, will give us the rightful result."

His great second inaugural address, rooted in a Biblical understanding of God and history, includes 14 references to God, four direct quotations from the Bible and other Scriptural allusions. In it, he termed slavery "an offense" to God's justice that had brought on this "terrible war" to purge the wrong.

"Fondly do we hope — fervently do we pray — that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue, until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash, shall be paid with another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, 'the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'"

Yet Lincoln also urged mercy and healing. "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in . . ."

That spring, the war was over. A few days later, Lincoln told of a premonitory dream about White House mourning over his coffin. At Ford's theater that night, he was assassinated. Shortly before, he had written: "I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me . . . God alone can claim it."

Lincoln, No Church Member, Deeply Religious

EDITOR'S NOTE: This third installment of a five-part Christmas series on the religion of U.S. presidents. "The Presidents and God," deals with Lincoln's view of God.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Out of his rustic origins, his native wisdom, the Biblical grain of his thinking and the fiery trial of the nation, Abraham Lincoln emerges as the most deeply religious of American presidents.

He never belonged to a church. His faith was not a set of creeds or formulas. But his mind and spirit radiated the fundamental essence of religion, an awareness of acting under the surpassing rightness of the divine will.

"If I can learn what it is, I will do it," he said, subjecting himself—unpretentiously—to it.

He sensed an overruling objective and way to it that he himself could not fully make out. He saw his decisions measured against a sought-for but unclear greater truth. He was a man "under God."

In fact, he first applied those words to the United States in his Gettysburg address in the midst of the Civil War, urging high resolve "that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom." The phrase now tempers the pledge of allegiance.

Lincoln said his aim was to be "an humble instrument in the hands of the Almighty." He disagreed with numerous callers, including clergy, who expressed hope for God to be on "our side." That wasn't Lincoln's concern, he said, "for I know the Lord is always on the side of right."

"But it is my constant anxiety and prayer that I and the nation should be on the Lord's side."

It was a perceptive, submissive distinction, devoid of the self-righteous postures of those presuming to pinpoint God's way. Yet Lincoln's sense of its elusiveness did not to him lessen its mandate on humanity, nor deter him from hard decisions in pursuit of it.

"We can but press on, guided by the best light He gave us, trusting that in His own good time, and wise way, all will yet be well," he said.

A craggy, 6-foot-4 man of brooding melancholy and wry humor, of forbearance and determination, of plain honesty and deep compassion, he saw God's purposes working in the complex events of history, within its mixed fallible motives.

He is "one of the greatest theologians of America," writes Episcopal scholar William J. Wolf, "not in the technical meaning of producing a system of doctrine, but in the sense of seeing the hand of God intimately in the affairs of nations."

To Lincoln, this was not a simple, obvious process, imposed mechanically on the world from without, but working inexorably, inscrutably within it, through the stumbling, ambiguous gropings of humanity.

"The purposes of the Almighty are perfect and must prevail, though we erring mortals may fail to accurately perceive them in advance," he said. At a low point in the war to preserve the Union, he wrote:

"I have desired that all my works and acts be according to His will, and that it might be so, I have sought His aid—but if, after endeavoring to do my best in the light which He affords me, I find my efforts fail, I must believe that for some purposes unknown to me, He wills it otherwise."

"If I had my way, this war would never have been commenced; if I had been allowed my way this war would have ended before this, but we find it still continues; and we must believe that He permits it for some wise purpose of His own, mysterious and unknown to us."

From the days of his backwoods, rustic schooling, in which the reading lessons were from the Bible, he immersed himself in Scriptures, and often had a battered, old family Bible in his hand at the White House.

"It is the best gift God has given to man," he said.

Sometimes called an "atheist" or "baboon infidel," Lincoln was alternately pained or amused by it. He fit no doctrinaire mold, but he dwelt steadily on religious principles, prayed much, and his speeches throbbed with the Hebrew cadences and quotations of Scripture.

"No president has ever had the detailed knowledge of the Bible Lincoln had," writes Wolf in his book, "The Religion of Abraham Lincoln." "No president has ever woven its thoughts and its rhythms into the warp and woof of his state papers as he did."

Lincoln's perspective was that of the Old Testament prophets. A "latter-day prophet," he has been called. An "American Isaiah" or Amos or Jeremiah. The "Great Emancipator." The "Great Reconciler." Leo Tolstoy, the famed Russian author of Lincoln's time, was so moved by Lincoln's anguished, dedicated role as to call him "A Christ in miniature."

He came to see slavery as a defiance of God's justice, subject to his judgment in the tragedy of an internecine war that fell on both sides, but whose useful purpose was national reformation.

"The will of God prevails," he often said, yet he claimed no certain knowledge of that will, only a determined striving for it in the conviction that it would succeed, whether he grasped it or not.

He recognized the enigmatic elements involved, the finiteness of human religious views, and also the ironies. He noted that both sides in war claim "to act in accordance with the will of God."

"Both may be, and one must be wrong," he said. "God cannot be for, and against the same thing at the same time." He said God's purpose may differ from that of either side, even though both serve as instrumentalities in effecting his ends.

"Both read the same Bible, and pray to the same God; and each invokes His aid against the other," Lincoln said. "It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's brows. But let us not judge that we be not judged."

"The prayers of both could not be answered; that of neither has been answered fully. The Almighty has his own purposes."

Yet, to Lincoln, God was no more impersonal, immutable power, and intimately active in persons and events. So strongly did Lincoln feel this that when he decided in 1862 to issue his proclamation emancipating slaves, he discussed it with his cabinet, then concluded in a low voice:

"I made a solemn vow before God, that if General Lee (the southern confederacy commander) was driven back from Pennsylvania, I would crown the result by the declaration of freedom to the slaves."

That emancipation proclamation came Jan. 1, 1863 — "a solemn recognition of responsibility before God and before men," Lincoln phrased it.

He himself had long opposed slavery, which he saw as denying God's intended destiny for the nation, a built-in contradiction to the law of its life. In the 1858 campaign debates with Stephen Douglas two years before Lincoln was elected president, he declared:

"My ancient faith teaches me that 'all men are created equal'; and that there can be no moral right in connection with one man's making a slave of another." This, he said, is inherent in "the justice of the Creator to His creatures... Nothing stamped with the divine image and likeness was sent into the world to be trodden on, and degraded, and imbruted by its fellows."

Yet Lincoln always expressed sorrow, not condemnation, toward the South in the conflict and was often attacked by radical abolitionists as being too mild.

Born in a Kentucky log cabin, he was reared in poverty. His family soon moved westward into the wilds of Indiana, where his farmer-carpenter father and stepmother helped start the Pigeon Creek Baptist Church, which he attended as a boy.

His total schooling amounted only to about one year, but he read avidly from the Bible and borrowed books — Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," Shakespeare, Aesop's Fables. He liked to write antic verses, and put down these lines on the death of a local character, a Kickapoo Indian:

"Here lies poor Johnny Kongapod
Have mercy on him, gracious God
As he would do if he was God
And you were Johnny Kongapod."

The doggerel indicates an aspect of Lincoln's religious conviction which he maintained through his life — that God intended the ultimate salvation of all men—a view most denominations sharply rejected. Lincoln had little use for the frontier fire-and-brimstone preachers, sometimes joking about them.

Moving farther west to Illinois, he split rails, did odd jobs, managed a mill, worked at stores, as a village postmaster, a surveyor, studying on his own for the law. He built a law practice in Springfield. Known as a story-teller, who usually had some folksy tale to make a point, he became a popular figure, served in the state legislature and eventually, in a sectionally torn nation, became president in 1861.

Three months later came the attack on Fort Sumpter, and the four-year war was on. Surely, he wrote later, God "intends some great good to follow this mighty convulsion, which no mortal could make, and no mortal could stay."

Sometimes in the pitch of crises, Lincoln said he would go to his room, lock the door and get down on his knees and pray. His secretary, John Nicolay, reported, "Mr. Lincoln was a praying man." Lincoln's wife, Mary Todd, joined the Presbyterian Church, as she had in Springfield, and he went with her to services, but never joined himself.

Coupled with his worries and serious religious reflections, however, was his humor. He called a laugh "good medicine," and encouraged it with homey anecdotes, including a story attributed to two Quaker women conversing on a train about Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, president of the southern confederacy.

One said, "I think Jefferson will succeed."

"Why does thee think so?" asked the other.

"Because Jefferson is a praying man."

"And so is Abraham a praying man."

"Yes, but the Lord will think Abraham is joking."

In a dark period of the war, Lincoln set April 30, 1863, as a national fast day, his proclamation for it sounding like a passage from the Book of Amos. It called both sides to their knees in repentance for "sins and transgressions" that have brought on the "awful calamity of this civil war."

"We have forgotten God," Lincoln said. "We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us."

But in spite of his anxiety about the nation's fate and grief as the toll of death mounted, Lincoln never lost faith in the ultimate triumph of God's will. "Let us diligently apply the means, never doubting that a just God, in his own good time, will give us the rightful result."

His great second inaugural address, rooted in a Biblical understanding of God and history, includes 14 references to God, four direct quotations from the Bible and other Scriptural allusions. In it, he termed slavery "an offense" to God's justice that had brought on this "terrible war" to purge the wrong.

"Fondly do we hope — fervently do we pray — that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue, until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash, shall be paid with another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, 'the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'"

Yet Lincoln also urged mercy and healing. "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in..."

That spring, the war was over. A few days later, Lincoln told of a premonitory dream about White House mourning over his coffin. At Ford's theater that night, he was assassinated. Shortly before, he had written: "I claim not to have controlled events, but confess plainly that events have controlled me... God alone can claim it."

BUNDLE OF JOY — Mary Westphal of Aurora, Ill., hugs her newly-adopted son Timothy John at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, ending a three-year battle with adoption agencies and social workers. Mr. and Mrs. Westphal, rebuffed by officials who maintained a person confined to a wheelchair by polio couldn't be a good mother, persisted in their efforts and were finally successful in adopting the 15-month-old Korean orphan, through the Lutheran social service organization.

American Brings Yuletide To Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Life to Betinho is a four-letter word.

The eight-year-old Brazilian street kid never knew his father, and his mother abandoned him when he was four. He shines shoes to eat and tries to sleep at friends' houses because he doesn't like to sleep in the street.

"But things will get better," he told Steve Murphy.

Murphy, a bachelor in his early 30s, is an American banker who tries to know Brazilians of all kinds. He once lived for six months in a favela, one of the hillside slums that the well-to-do avoid and police are reluctant to enter. He had been growing more and more concerned about Betinho and the rest of the 15 million abandoned Brazilian children who beg and steal to stay alive in the cities.

"I decided something ought to be done for the kids even in a small personal way," the young American said.

He wrote his American and Brazilian friends asking them to help with a Christmas party at his apartment in Rio's elegant Copacabana district. Each friend was asked to find an abandoned child to bring to the party.

Some of his friends responded enthusiastically. They raised money to buy shoes, shorts and t-shirts, ice cream, cake and punch. Three toy companies volunteered to donate 200 to 300 toys.

Not everyone approved.

"I think it's a very eccentric idea for Rio," one man said. "I know these kids — they're mean. They'll come to his house and he'll never get rid of them."

"He'll probably get his house robbed," said another who refused to contribute. "You can't control those kids."

"Some asked us why we didn't donate this money to organized charity because it's more efficient," said Murphy. "My reply is that organized charity puts a buffer between the giver and the receiver, the child and us, the fat cats of society."

"I thought it was about time that we got down and talked personally to these children."

About 130 children were rounded up. At Murphy's apartment they found ice cream, punch, cake, presents, clothes and Papa Noel, Brazil's Santa Claus.

Murphy will gather a few friends on Christmas Eve and "take to the hills" to distribute the gifts left from the party among families in the favelas.

Foul Play

RAYNHAM, Mass. (AP) — Two masked men robbed a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant here and proceeded to pluck and truss two tired store employees.

Police said Gilbert Souza and Tom Adams were closing up the takeout place recently when the robbers entered the store and demanded the night deposit of $100.

The workers were forced at knifepoint to get into a waiting car and were taken to an isolated wooded area. The holdup-men made Souza and Adams strip, bound them up with rope and left them.

The employees wriggled out of their bonds and walked miles to the nearest house. A blushing housewife asked the men to stand in the hallway with towels as she telephoned the authorities, police said.

Winter No Time To Get 'Cabin Fever'

By JIM DAUBEL
For The Associated Press

To the casual outdoor person, we are fast approaching that time of year when we sit back by a warm fire with a good book and wait for warmer weather.

But there is no season of inactivity to those who are highly susceptible to cabin fever. In fact, the person who really knows the outdoors can rarely find enough time for everything that can be done at virtually any time of the year.

True, the deer season has ended for shotguns. But the Ohio bow season on whitetails of either sex extends through Jan. 22 in all deer zones.

Private lands closed to squirrel hunters on Nov. 13 and to pheasant gunners Dec. 4. But hunting for both species remains open on public land through Dec. 18 for bushytails and Jan. 29 for ringnecks.

If you steered clear of public wildlife areas during the early pheasant season you probably did the smart thing. Hunting can be downright dangerous because of enormously heavy pressure on public areas where

Humane Society Holds Meeting

On Dec. 8, the regular meeting of the Pickaway County Humane Society met in the Probate Courtroom with 10 members present. The Speaker's Committee will provide a speaker for the Circleville Junior Women's Club in March.

Ralph Wallace explained pet abandonment policy at the Animal Shelter. He said that from 40 to 80 dogs are left there each week. Ralph will be available at the shelter from 8:00 to 4:00 Monday through Friday and from 8:00 to 11:30 Saturday mornings.

Thanks were extended to Steve and Wendy Lust for taking the pictures and writing up the "Pet of the Week" articles.

Gary Camp said that there will be an Animal Control Legislative Workshop at Ohio State University that might be of interest to the members. Those members wanting to go to the workshop on January 5, 1977 on Education of the Public should contact Gary Camp or Vaun Billman.

The Education Committee will explain to the county school that field trips are available to the Animal Shelter.

The next meeting will be January 12, 1977 at 7 p.m. in the Probate Courtroom.

Earl Warren was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in October, 1953.

the state stocks pen raised birds on opening day and key weekends thereafter.

The season from Dec. 4 through Jan. 29, however, can provide good shooting for the hunter willing to work over wildlife areas, preferably with dog. The crowds are gone, many native birds have survived where habitat is prime and you may even turn up a stocked ringneck that has somehow managed to outwit the elements and the masses of hunters so common earlier.

Bobwhite quail are legal quarry on public and private lands through Jan. 15. This exciting gamebird is well distributed in the state, primarily in Southern Ohio, but may be hunted only on state land or private property signed into agreement for quail hunting.

Ruffed grouse can be hunted through Feb. 26 on public and private land. Best shooting is found in Southeastern Ohio where state lands are abundant and grouse populations are highest.

One of the most popular winter seasons, on cottontail rabbits, extends through Jan. 29. With or without a dog, the advent of snowy conditions puts a new slant on bunny hunting.

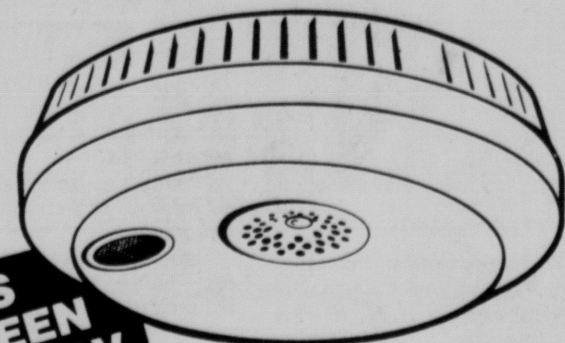

Rabbit populations were up through most of Ohio this fall and chasing bunnies in good tracking snow is a slight advantage to the hunter over dry, noisy conditions of the early fall.

Look for cottontails to be afield on sunny, dry days, preferably when the snow is packed or crusted. The best habitat for winter hunting includes thick brush, fencerows and areas where rabbits can take refuge in abandoned woodchuck burrows.

Unclaimed Money Response Large

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Commerce has been swamped with inquiries about millions of dollars in unclaimed money the department is trying to disburse.

Commerce Director J. Gordon Peltier said the department's unclaimed funds section has received 10,000 written requests since it ran lists this month in Ohio newspapers of unclaimed accounts in financial institutions totaling about $18.5 million.

The money was left in savings accounts and safety deposit boxes that have not been used for five to 15 years.

"From all indications, the response to this year's ads will be the largest in the department's history. We had so many people come in, they were sitting in the halls," Peltier said.

NOTICE OF SALE: By virtue of an Order for Sale issued on December 7, 1976 by the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, at Columbus, Ohio, in Civil Action No. C-75-22 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA vs. JACK E. POLLOCK, DECEASED, et al., I will offer for sale to the highest bidder on January 12, 1977, at 11:00 o'clock A.M. at the front door of the Pickaway County Court House, Circleville, Ohio, the following described real estate: situated in the Village of New Holland, County of Pickaway, and State of Ohio, and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at a stone in the center of the New Holland and Washington Turnpike at the Southeast corner of a tract of land, formerly owned by John Colopy; thence with the said Colopy line 160 feet to a stone in the south line of an alley; thence at right angles to the said Colopy line, east 60 feet to a stake in the line of lands owned by M. E. Ferguson and Ellen M. Ferguson; thence with said line south 160 feet to a stake in the center of said Turnpike; thence with the center of said Turnpike west 60 feet to the place of beginning, being 9600 square feet of land. PROPERTY ADDRESS: 162 West Front Street, New Holland, Ohio 43145. Terms of Sale: Cash on day of sale. I reserve the right to reject any and all bids. ELMER J. Flu Probe Continues

ATLANTA (AP) — Public health officials have begun a nationwide search for all cases of a paralyzing syndrome to try to learn if it is linked with the suspended swine flu immunization program.

The National Center for Disease Control said Monday it is checking health departments, neurologists and emergency rooms.

"We are looking for cases which we know have no relationship to the inoculation program so they can be compared with those who have been inoculated," a spokesman said.

The CDC turned its attention to the Guillain-Barre Syndrome after health officials monitoring the flu shot program became concerned about the number of reported cases.

The program was suspended last Thursday until any possible connection between the syndrome and the vaccinations can be investigated.

As of Monday, 125 cases of the syndrome had been reported. Of those, 72 had been vaccinated, 47 had not and the status of the other five was unknown. Six deaths have been reported from the syndrome — all of them to persons who had been vaccinated.

Most persons afflicted with the disorder experience weakness in the legs, which spread to the hands and arms, the neck and face. Most recover after several weeks.

Tank Output Beefed Up

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. said today it will beef up its work force to handle the biggest backlog of tank orders since the Korean conflict.

Officials said 1,000 workers will be added next year to the current 1,800 employees at the Detroit Arsenal in Warren.

Under its agreement with the United Auto Workers, Chrysler has to offer the jobs first to workers laid off at other Chrysler plants in the area. No new job applications will be taken until the list of laid-off workers is exhausted, the firm said.

The Chrysler tank arsenal is the only facility in the country building medium-sized combat tanks.

Oliver White, general manager of the Chrysler tank facility, said the plant is slated to build 2,753 M-60A1 tanks through March 1979, under a $600 million contract with the defense department. The project also calls for 11 pilot models of a new XM1 main battle tank to be built at Warren with initial production of the new weapons at Lima, Ohio, in 1979 under a $4.7 billion contract.

Chrysler won the XM1 contract in competition with General Motors Corp. last month.

An Army spokesman said the M60 tanks will go to U.S. armed forces and some foreign countries.

"Whenever a man has cast a longing eye on offices, a rottenness begins in his conduct," wrote Thomas Jefferson in a letter to T. Coxe in 1799.

Unclaimed Money Response Large

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Commerce has been swamped with inquiries about millions of dollars in unclaimed money the department is trying to disburse.

Commerce Director J. Gordon Peltier said the department's unclaimed funds section has received 10,000 written requests since it ran lists this month in Ohio newspapers of unclaimed accounts in financial institutions totaling about $18.5 million.

The money was left in savings accounts and safety deposit boxes that have not been used for five to 15 years.

"From all indications, the response to this year's ads will be the largest in the department's history. We had so many people come in, they were sitting in the halls," Peltier said.

Counselor Turns Into Zookeeper

CLEVELAND (AP)—A disenchanted counselor has opted for the zookeeping business, because "with animals I can establish a rapport."

So says Michael E. Elliott, 23, a zookeeper at the Cleveland Metroparks Zoo who has forsaken a counseling career to work with elephants, giraffes, hippopotamuses and rhinoceroses.

A 1975 graduate of Kenyon College with a degree in psychology, Elliott decided to pursue his career working with Mexican-American and Indian children in Albuquerque, N.M.

"I had always wanted to be a teacher, a counselor, but after working with those kids, I found I wasn't getting the results I had hoped for," said Elliott, a Cleveland native.

"I began to wonder if I had the capability to be a counselor because I couldn't seem to communicate with them. I was beginning to wonder if I could work with kids or even adults."

After giving graduate school a whirl at the University of New Mexico, and taking on various odd jobs along the West Coast, Elliott returned to Cleveland last February.

He said he always had an interest in animals, so when he spotted a summer job opening at the zoo he applied and got it.

"Usually no one wants to work here," he said. "The animals are so big, and a couple of them can be mean."

He told of several brushes with some of his four-legged friends. Once Simba, an elephant, grabbed him with her trunk. "She lifted me and hit me with a tusk. She gave me a 12-inch bruise on my right leg."

Elliott said he also had a close call with O-Kie, a 1,500 pound rhino whom he had become quite friendly with.

O-Kie, living up to his species' short-tempered reputation, turned on Elliott once after he went for a ride on the animal's back. "I got off between the wall and O-Kie, and he tried to hook me with his horn. I put my hand on the horn, worked around him and got out of the paddock," related Elliott, who says the incidents haven't dampened in the least his enthusiasm for his work.

"With animals I can establish a rapport," he said, adding the same wasn't always so with people. "I can communicate with them. You have to if you want to work with them."

"And they get to know you. They can even pick you out of a crowd after you've been working with them for awhile."

"In all the jobs I've ever had," he continued, "this is the first time I've really been happy. There's a sense of accomplishment."

Elliott said he hopes to return to school to study veterinary medicine, and perhaps ultimately assume an administrative job at a zoo in which he can "take an active part in planning."

Elliott minimized his vocational transition from people to animals, saying, "It's really not that different. I like to think of people and animals all as creatures of God."

"Besides," he added, "there are an awful lot of unhappy people who stick with a career even though they hate it."

Underprivileged Children Urged To Collect Gifts

Plans have been completed for the VFW Community Christmas Tree by Chairman Les Merrill and committee members.

Those children in Pickaway County, 12-years-old and under should go to Ted Lewis Park from noon to 2 p.m. Christmas Eve to receive their presents. The drawing for cash prizes, the largest amount being $500, will take place at 2 p.m. under the large tree at the park.

The VFW is concerned with all low income families in the county. Merrill said there is no specifications on the income categories, because he understands it might not include those families with higher incomes but larger families.

Merrill hopes that parents will see to it that their children receive the presents if the need is there.

Donations for the success of the project have been generous, and Merrill said that without them, the project may have folded. He adds that it is not too late to mail in contributions.

The latest donations received include a contribution from Reynolds Metal Company, Ashville. Merrill extends a big thanks to Davis Sand Hill Fruit Farm, Carroll and Sid Lapworth for a bargain on apples which has made the basket of goodies a large and plentiful selection of fruits, nuts and candy.

Any donations will still be accepted by the VFW, payable and mailed to the Community Christmas Tree, 217 N. Court St., Circleville.

Merrill hopes that all donors, ticket holders and anybody else interested in the welfare of Pickaway County children will come to Ted Lewis Park in the early afternoon on Christmas to see the tree, gifts and be present for the raffle.

Bellhop Raps Carter Acts

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 30-year-old bellhop has offered President-elect Carter a tip: when staying at a hotel, let the staff carry the luggage.

Carter has been photographed handling his own baggage on several trips, and Tom Gould, who works at the Crown Center Hotel here, said the President-elect has hurt the trade.

In a letter to Carter, Gould said, "Your public actions have given license to people freeloading, and then looking at service personnel as if they were parasites. This upsets the staff, it affects the operation of the whole house and it cheats the people who have come there to enjoy a fine hotel."

Gould, who has been a bellhop for three years, said, "Just as one does not go to a restaurant and ask for cafeteria service, one does not go to a hotel and expect motel service."

"Travelers ... who prefer to carry their own luggage, make their own beds and fix their own food will hopefully go 'camping,'" he added.

Woman Helps Plan Big Ceremonies

SEATTLE (AP) — If drama, pomp and circumstance are missing from your life, Roberta Arnett will help you find them — for $30 an hour.

Ms. Arnett, the founder, president and sole employee of the Cosmis Androgyny Ceremony Design Service, thinks up ceremonies suitable for life's big occasions.

Not only will she plan weddings and funerals, Ms. Arnett helps clients commemorate other important changes in their lives — new jobs, puberty and menopause.

"What a ceremony really does is get you free to go on to the next event," says the 35-year-old former social worker. "It helps to define clearly what you are doing. A lot of times, if you don't define that, you can't go on. You get lost in the mud-dle."

Ms. Arnett's fascination with ceremonies began when she put together her own wedding a year ago.

Amy Mum On Public Schooling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amy Carter has no comment about attending a public school in Washington.

Amy, 9, and her mother, Rosalynn Carter, took her first look at the 108-year-old Stevens School Monday. She'll be starting in its fourth grade shortly after her father is sworn in as president on Jan. 20.

Amy played with her classmates, met her teachers, and tried her hand with the star of the Stevens fourth grade, an electric turtle on which the students learn some elementary facts about computers.

As she and her mother emerged from their 45-minute visit, she was carrying a sheaf of poster-sized welcoming letters from her new classmates.

They came in handy when reporters started asking her how she liked the school. She put them over her head and ignored the press, letting her mother serve as her spokesman.

"Amy has never been too excited about coming to Washington," Mrs. Carter said, because it meant leaving old friends and familiar places behind.

"I thought if I brought her with me and let her see the White House and the school, she'd get excited. She liked it. She had a good time here."

Amy will be the first child of a president to attend public school in Washington since Theodore Roosevelt's son in 1906. Her new school, which is six blocks from the White House, is about 60 per cent black, 30 per cent Hispanic, and 10 per cent white.

Amy also accompanied her mother to the White House. They conferred with the chief of the house staff and picked out the room she will occupy. The current lady of the house, Betty Ford, was on vacation in Colorado.

Three People Injured In Accidents

Three people were injured, one seriously, in two traffic accidents investigated Tuesday by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Terry Frazier.

Gary A. Branham, 22, Route 2, Ashville, was admitted to Rickenbacker Air Force Base Hospital following a 4:50 p.m. accident at the intersection of Route 752 and the Walnut Creek Pike.

Branham is suffering from a concussion, a sprained back, and a lacerated right eye lid.

Driver of the other car involved in the crash, Joseph A. Doritan, 46, 1335 Dunkle Road, was not hurt.

Doritan was driving south on the Walnut Creek Pike and had stopped at the intersection of Route 752. He did not spot Branham's eastbound car and pulled into the intersection.

Branham, attempting to avoid the collision, applied his brakes and skidded 118 feet into the side of Doritan's car, spinning it around and causing it to skid 82 feet into a fence gate owned by Bill Plum, 6449 Route 752.

After impact, Branham's car flipped over and skidded 45 feet before hitting a Department of Transportation road sign. The car came to rest on its top on a fence owned by Plum.

The accident is under investigation, according to Deputy Frazier.

Two people were hurt in a single car accident 9:25 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of the Kingston Pike and Route 361.

Scott A. Willoughby, 17, 359 Cedar Heights Road, driver of the car, was referred to a doctor for treatment of minor injuries, and a passenger, Roy M. Huffer III, 17, 975 Circle Drive, was treated for a concussion.

A second passenger, Michael R. Brudzinski, 17, 220 Walnut Creek Pike, was not hurt.

Deputy Frazier said Willoughby was driving south on the Kingston Pike and applied the brake on his car as he was approaching the Route 361 intersection.

However, the right rear brake on the car locked and forced Willoughby to lose control of the car.

Fearful of colliding with an oncoming vehicle, Willoughby apparently swerved his car to the right, slid through the intersection, and crashed into a field owned by Charles Rittinger, 5769 Route 361.

Cold Air Blankets Eastern U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unseasonable cold covered the eastern half of the nation this morning. Temperatures below 10 degrees ranged across the north Atlantic states, and readings in the teens or 20s hit the Great Lakes region, the middle Atlantic states, the Southeast, the Mississippi valley and the Ohio valley.

A frost and freeze warning was in effect across north and central Florida. Temperatures hit the 20s in some spots there, although southern Florida had readings in the 50s.

Parts of the East had biting winds as well as cold. A high wind warning was posted for southeastern New York and northern New Jersey through tonight. Gale warnings were in effect for Lake Ontario and along the north half of the Atlantic coast.

Meanwhile, such normally cold areas as Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota had mild temperatures. A warm front in the northern plains kept overnight temperatures there in the 30s.

Elsewhere, early morning temperatures were in the teens or 20s, except for some 40s and 50s across the Pacific states and southern Texas.

Light snow fell across portions of the northern plains, the upper Mississippi valley and the lower Great Lakes. Travelers advisories remained in effect for extreme northeast Ohio and central New York.

Clear skies covered most of the nation. Cloudiness was restricted to the northern tier, Texas, the Pacific coast and the upper Ohio valley.

Overnight temperatures ranged from eight below zero at Alamosa, Colo., to 63 at El Toro, Calif.

Bank Robbed; Guard Slain

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police were searching Tuesday for two men and their accomplices who held up a bank on the east side of Columbus, leaving a 74-year-old bank guard fatally wounded.

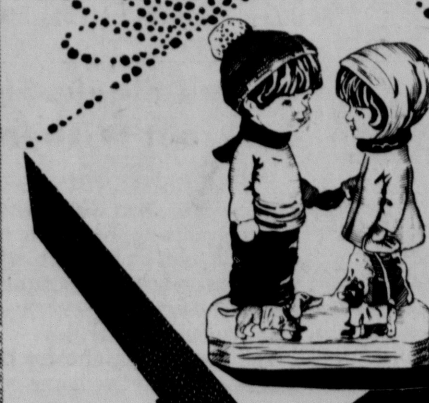

Authorities said Bernie Davis, a guard at the Ohio National Bank branch, suffered gunshot wounds in the head and arm. He died in a local hospital about three hours after the mid-afternoon robbery.

The armed robbers escaped with an undetermined amount of money, police said. Authorities said two men robbed the bank and were joined by a man and two women in a getaway car. The robbers were the subject of a statewide search by police, sheriff's deputies, the Highway Patrol and the FBI.

A Columbus police robbery detective said he believed Davis was killed without reason. "They just came and blew the guy away," said Detective Chester DeLong. "I just don't know how to put it any milder. It was definitely premeditated."

Counselor Turns Into Zookeeper

CLEVELAND (AP)—A disenchanted counselor has opted for the zookeeping business, because "with animals I can establish a rapport."

So says Michael E. Elliott, 23, a zookeeper at the Cleveland Metroparks Zoo who has forsaken a counseling career to work with elephants, giraffes, hippopotamuses and rhinoceroses.

A 1975 graduate of Kenyon College with a degree in psychology, Elliott decided to pursue his career working with Mexican-American and Indian children in Albuquerque, N.M.

"I had always wanted to be a teacher, a counselor, but after working with those kids, I found I wasn't getting the results I had hoped for," said Elliott, a Cleveland native.

"I began to wonder if I had the capability to be a counselor because I couldn't seem to communicate with them. I was beginning to wonder if I could work with kids or even adults."

After giving graduate school a whirl at the University of New Mexico, and taking on various odd jobs along the West Coast, Elliott returned to Cleveland last February.

He said he always had an interest in animals, so when he spotted a summer job opening at the zoo he applied and got it.

"Usually no one wants to work here," he said. "The animals are so big, and a couple of them can be mean."

He told of several brushes with some of his four-legged friends. Once Simba, an elephant, grabbed him with her trunk. "She lifted me and hit me with a tusk. She gave me a 12-inch bruise on my right leg."

Elliott said he also had a close call with O-Kie, a 1,500 pound rhino whom he had become quite friendly with.

O-Kie, living up to his species' short-tempered reputation, turned on Elliott once after he went for a ride on the animal's back. "I got off between the wall and O-Kie, and he tried to hook me with his horn. I put my hand on the horn, worked around him and got out of the paddock," related Elliott, who says the incidents haven't dampened in the least his enthusiasm for his work.

"With animals I can establish a rapport," he said, adding the same wasn't always so with people. "I can communicate with them. You have to if you want to work with them."

"And they get to know you. They can even pick you out of a crowd after you've been working with them for awhile."

"In all the jobs I've ever had," he continued, "this is the first time I've really been happy. There's a sense of accomplishment."

Elliott said he hopes to return to school to study veterinary medicine, and perhaps ultimately assume an administrative job at a zoo in which he can "take an active part in planning."

Elliott minimized his vocational transition from people to animals, saying, "It's really not that different. I like to think of people and animals all as creatures of God."

"Besides, he added, "there are an awful lot of unhappy people who stick with a career even though they hate it."

Braves Edge Mustangs In Thriller, 66-63

By TOM SPRING
Herald Staff Writer

It may not have produced the same kind of heart-stopping action as the reserve contest did, but Logan Elm's 66-63 varsity victory over the quintet from Westfall certainly produced a few tense seconds at the end of the ballgame.

As everyone knows, anytime two county schools place themselves on the same court at the same time anything can happen, and it usually does. Tuesday night was no exception.

After Logan Elm won an unbelievable reserve game in overtime, the varsity squads came out on the floor and for a while, it looked as if a repeat of the first game might occur.

After a nip and tuck first quarter between the Westfall five and the shooting of Randy Pontius and Chuck Cave, Logan Elm took a 14-10 lead into the second frame.

Both teams played cautiously and neither team scored more than a field goal in each of the eight minutes in the frame.

With the Braves' two "action" men, guards Jeff Collins and Mark Skinner leading the movement, Cave and Collins put the Braves ahead by eight early in the second session. Jeff Mowery came off the bench and ignited a brief Mustang rally that put Westfall within four, as he scored eight of his team's first 10 points in the period.

But the Mustangs suddenly went cold, and the Braves reeled off ten straight points, the last six coming on four trips to the foul lane as Westfall ran into foul problems.

Balanced scoring and excellent teamwork by the Braves made it 38-21 before Larry Bilek of Westfall sank a free throw after the gun sounded and Logan Elm headed into the locker room with a comfortable 15 point lead.

Logan Elm slowly built up its lead in the third frame taking a 20 point margin, 47-27, and 49-29 at 2:53.

It was at this point that a new game

developed, and Westfall's impossible dream nearly became reality.

The Mustangs cut the gap back to 15 at the end of the buzzer.

Then in the final frame, the Mustangs' big center, Larry Bilek, and Bruce Starkey went to work and the two of them outgained the scoring efforts of Cave, Pontius, Mark Skinner and Terry Wright, and then, with the score 59-46 in Logan Elm's favor, Bilek ran away with seven unanswered points and Westfall was back in the ballgame, with the score 59-53.

After losing another point edge on a free throw, the Braves saw Neil Keller sink two charity tosses at 0:33 and a bucket at 0:15 and the score read 64-63 and fans didn't know what to expect.

But, the Mustangs turned the ball over and when Mark Skinner drew a foul, the Logan Elm playmaker calmly sank both free throws to seal a 66-63 win in the record books for the Braves of Logan Elm.

The big gun for the Braves, Chuck Cave, led all scorers in the fray with 10 two-pointers and three tosses from the charity stripe for 23 points.

Senior Randy Pontius had five field goals and four free throws for 14 points and Jeff Collins hooped the ball five times for 10 points.

Terry Wright netted nine, Mark Skinner, seven, and Jerry Scanlon had three.

The Mustangs' senior center Larry Bilek, led his team with 19 points including nine the final canto.

Bruce Starkey had five goals and two free throws for 12 markers. Neil Keller connected for eight points, Jeff Mowery sank eight, all in the second frame, Tom Adams fired six, Chris Weaver hooped five, Dave Clem ripped four and Eric Schleich hit a field goal. Schleich injured his ankle late in the first period and missed the rest of the game.

Turnovers hurt the Mustangs as they committed 15. Logan Elm on the other hand played nearly error free for three quarters. Most of their eight turnovers came in the final period.

Logan Elm sank 11 of 17 free throws for 64 per cent. Westfall made 20 of 28 charity tosses for a 71 per cent shooting average.

Both coaches had praise for their opponents. Coach Butch Kobel of Logan Elm said, "Westfall is a real scrappy ball club and shoots real well."

"I wasn't pleased at all with our defense. Offensively we didn't do too bad," he said.

Kobel said the Braves biggest problem is their bad habit of losing large leads in the second half after building them up during the first two frames.

Kobel also had praise for the "super job on defense" turned in by Randy Pontius and the leadership of Collins and Skinner.

Mustang coach Mike Eckle said simply, "Logan Elm played a whale of a ball game. They may have let down some in the third period and we jumped in. But Chuck Cave is a real good player and senior Mark Skinner made those two pressure packed free throws and that shows you that he's a good consistent basketball player."

Eckle said he thought the Mustangs played "outstandingly" while coming from 20 points back in the final two frames, but was hurt by inaction during the first half.

"But, Bilek came alive in the final period, and Dave Clem, and John Long, who saw his first action of the year tonight, came off the bench and picked us up," Eckle said.

Logan Elm is 5-1 for the season. The Braves visit Fisher Catholic Jan. 7.

The Mustangs are 1-6 and host Paint Valley Jan. 7 before traveling to Southeastern a day later.

Logan Elm's reserve team ran its season record to 5-1 after it beat Westfall 48-47 in the reserve contest. A nip and tuck affair all the way, Logan Elm had first half leads of 7-5 and 21-19 but Westfall took a third period edge 31-28.

The little Mustangs apparently had things wrapped up with a 42-39 edge with one second in regulation time.

Logan Elm's Mark Vanover drew a foul but only made the first shot of the one-and-one situation.

Dan Schleich threw in the ball for Westfall, but as he did, Vanover drew another foul from a Mustang and this time sank both shots making the score 42-42 and sent the game into overtime. The lead see-sawed back and forth, but Logan Elm managed to pull ahead as the seconds ticked off to win the game 48-47.

Vanover led the Braves with 18 points, Tom Congrove hooped 12, Dan Hill canned seven, Bruce Hannigan rimmed five while Brian Hannigan, Jeff Davis and Terry Wadlington each scored two.

H. L. Gibson netted 11, Dan Schleich fired ten and Kevin Creamer hooped nine for the Mustangs. Randy Hartzell meshed six, Greg Cooper added five, Amos Watson canned four and Mark List sank two.

Minnesota Trips Marquette

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

At Marquette, they are not used to getting booed. But it is happening there.

They are not used to losing two games in a row at home, either. But that has happened, too.

The sixth-ranked Warriors found themselves in that unaccustomed position after a 66-59 loss to No. 20 Minnesota Tuesday night.

The defeat, following Saturday night's 78-74 loss to Louisville, marked the first time since the 1966-67 season that Marquette lost two in a row at home. At that time, the Warriors were beaten in succession by Toledo and South Carolina.

Tuesday night, the Warriors helped beat themselves with a poor 29 per cent shooting average from the field and an unimpressive defense. Marquette's not used to that, either.

"The first half was a complete embarrassment," said Coach Al McGuire, pointing to a 37-18 halftime deficit. "Sometimes the shots don't go in for you. But it's not so much how you do on offense. It's letting the other team score. That was our problem."

In other college basketball games, top-ranked Michigan routed Central Michigan 104-63; No. 2 Notre Dame demolished Vermont 89-48; No. 3 San Francisco trimmed Oral Roberts 86-76; No. 9 Wake Forest romped over Fairleigh Dickinson 99-63, and No. 19 Tennessee tripped Xavier 97-73.

In tournament play, No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas blitzed Murray State 104-77 and Oklahoma stopped Bradley 90-70 in the Rebel Roundup Tournament at Las Vegas, and Indiana whipped Miami of Ohio 76-55 in the championship game of the Indiana Classic at Bloomington, Ind.

Sparked by Mike Thompson, who scored 23 points, Minnesota opened a 24-point lead and withstood Marquette's late charge. The Warriors cut the deficit to 59-57 on a basket by Jim Boylan. But a field goal and two free throws by Osborne Lockhart in the last 1:58 clinched it for the Gophers.

Olympic gold medalist Phil Hubbard scored a career-high 26 points and collected 15 rebounds as Michigan blasted Central Michigan. Don Williams scored 20 points and Bill Paterno added 15 as Notre Dame trounced Vermont.

Winford Boynes and Rod Williams combined for 46 points, lifting San Francisco over Oral Roberts. Led by Skip Brown's 18 points, six Wake Forest players scored in double figures as the Demon Deacons defeated Fairleigh Dickinson. Bernard King's 32 points led Tennessee's victory.

Lewis Brown fired in 17 points, leading Nevada-Las Vegas past Murray State, and Clifford Johnson scored 31 as Oklahoma defeated Bradley. Kent Benson's 26 points powered Indiana past Miami of Ohio.

Aces Rally To Defeat Millersport

Amanda-Clearcreek rallied in the fourth period to pull the game out of the fire and hand Millersport a 56-50 defeat on the Lakers' floor Tuesday night.

The Aces were all tied up 10-10 at the end of the first period, fell behind 28-20 at halftime and trailed 44-40 at the third canto buzzer.

But, they came roaring back in the final quarter to put 16 points on the board while holding the Lakers to six.

Cloyce Hartley paced Amanda-Clearcreek with 22 points, Mark Bitler hooped 10, Rod Bowers and Mike Nye each netted eight while Rick Foster and Tim Hinton both added four.

Caldwell was tops for the Lakers with 18 markers, Clark netted 14, Hill tallied six, Waller had four, Dupler and Weldon both hit three while Smith netted two.

The Aces hit 27 of 70 from the floor and two of three from the charity stripe while Millersport was 24 of 63 from the hardwood and two of four from the free throw line.

The Aces also won the battle of the boards with 29 rebounds to the Lakers 23.

Amanda-Clearcreek is now 2-4 and 1-3 in Mid State action and will be at Berne Union Jan. 7.

The Amanda-Clearcreek reserves dropped a 40-26 decision to the Lakers in the opener.

Scott Guseman led the Aces with 12 points, Gary Bussert added six while Steve Gussert and Jim Nye each tallied four.

Steelers, Raiders Ready For Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home field advantage in sports has been well publicized. But what about the "awayfield" advantage?

That is what the Pittsburgh Steelers think they have in Sunday's American Football Conference playoff game against the Oakland Raiders.

"There's nothing we like better than going against a team that's biting at the bit, with the crowd hollering obscene things at you," says Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw. "Then you go down and score, win the football game and get out of there."

Coach Chuck Noll agrees with Bradshaw.

"Our team reacts to the crowd noise, whether it's for or against us," noted Noll. "That kind of thing excites our football team. Our history shows it."

The most recent example, of course, is Pittsburgh's 40-14 humiliation of the Baltimore Colts in last week's American Football Conference playoff opener at Baltimore. The Steelers have won more than one National Football League game in intensely hostile territory en route to two straight Super Bowl titles.

The Steelers could be exactly in their element, then, because the crowd in Oakland figures to be very hostile. The fans have been waiting impatiently for a Super Bowl participant ever since the world series of football began 11 years ago.

The winner of Sunday's AFC title game will advance to Super Bowl XI at Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 9 against the survivor of Sunday's National Conference playoff game between the Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams.

The Steelers, with their offensive and defensive lines playing extremely well, are slight favorites over the Raiders — despite being riddled by injuries. First-string running backs Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier were hurt in the Baltimore game and both are listed as "questionable" for Sunday's game. Another Pittsburgh regular, kicker Roy Gerela, has a groin injury.

The Raiders, who beat New England 24-21 last weekend, are in better shape physically and offer one of the most explosive passing games in the NFL behind quarterback Ken Stabler. The southpaw passer could come out throwing at the start to upset the Steelers' equilibrium.

Unlike Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and Minnesota are in relatively good shape for their game at Bloomington, Minn.

The Rams have only two minor injuries after their 14-12 decision over Dallas last weekend. Minnesota, which beat Washington 35-20 last weekend in advancing to the NFC championship game, also has two players on the injured list, but both middle linebacker Jeff Siemon and quarterback Fran Tarkenton are expected to play.

The Rams and Vikings have been the most successful teams in the NFC for several years. Yet, neither has won a Super Bowl. In the last four years, the Rams have a 44-11-1 record while Minnesota is 45-10-1. The tie occurred when the two played a 10-10 game three months ago.

The Vikings are unanimous in their agreement that the game will be a brutally physical battle, decided in the trenches.

"It's a do-or-die situation," said Minnesota tackle Alan Page. "If you don't do it, it's all over."

Knicks Rip Pistons

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"We seem to be meshing much quicker than we expected," mused New York Knicks Coach Red Holzman, bidding for understatement of the year.

In Game Three of the McAdoo Era, the Knicks mashed Detroit right out of Madison Square Garden Tuesday night, routing the Pistons 133-103 with their highest point total and widest victory margin of the season.

"They looked awesome, didn't they?" observed Pistons Coach Herb Brown, shaking his head.

Indeed they did. The Knicks ripped off the last 13 points of the first quarter for a 35-22 lead, turned back a mild challenge in the second quarter, then blew out Detroit with a 38-19 third period for a 102-69 advantage. In the fourth quarter, the reserves got their chance to perform.

The Knicks are 3-0 since Bob McAdoo joined the lineup and have climbed over the .500 mark at 15-14. Detroit, meanwhile, had a four-game winning streak snapped despite 20 points by Bob Lanier and 14 points and 11 assists by Kevin Porter.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the New Orleans Jazz beat the Indiana Pacers 123-113, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Boston Celtics 108-101, the San Antonio Spurs topped the Golden State Warriors 123-120, the Chicago Bulls edged the Seattle SuperSonics 103-101 in double overtime, the Denver Nuggets downed the Philadelphia 76ers 108-94, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Buffalo Braves 97-89 and the Portland Trail Blazers trimmed the Kansas City Kings 99-94.

Catcher Johnny Bench of the world champion Cincinnati Reds has allowed only two stolen bases in 23 World Series games in four years. They were made by Yankee Mickey Rivers who got a big jump against pitcher Gary Nolan in the final 1976 game, and by Matty Alou of Oakland in 1972.

Braves Edge Mustangs In Thriller, 66-63

By TOM SPRING
Herald Staff Writer

It may not have produced the same kind of heart-stopping action as the reserve contest did, but Logan Elm's 66-63 varsity victory over the quintet from Westfall certainly produced a few tense seconds at the end of the ballgame.

As everyone knows, anytime two county schools place themselves on the same court at the same time anything can happen, and it usually does. Tuesday night was no exception.

After Logan Elm won an unbelievable reserve game in overtime, the varsity squads came out on the floor and for a while, it looked as if a repeat of the first game might occur.

After a nip and tuck first quarter between the Westfall five and the shooting of Randy Pontius and Chuck Cave, Logan Elm took a 14-10 lead into the second frame.

Both teams played cautiously and neither team scored more than a field goal in each of the eight minutes in the frame.

With the Braves' two "action" men, guards Jeff Collins and Mark Skinner leading the movement, Cave and Collins put the Braves ahead by eight early in the second session. Jeff Mowery came off the bench and ignited a brief Mustang rally that put Westfall within four, as he scored eight of his team's first 10 points in the period.

But the Mustangs suddenly went cold, and the Braves reeled off ten straight points, the last six coming on four trips to the foul lane as Westfall ran into foul problems.

Balanced scoring and excellent teamwork by the Braves made it 38-21 before Larry Bilek of Westfall sank a free throw after the gun sounded and Logan Elm headed into the locker room with a comfortable 15 point lead.

Logan Elm slowly built up its lead in the third frame taking a 20 point margin, 47-27, and 49-29 at 2:53.

It was at this point that a new game

developed, and Westfall's impossible dream nearly became reality.

The Mustangs cut the gap back to 15 at the end of the buzzer.

Then in the final frame, the Mustangs' big center, Larry Bilek, and Bruce Starkey went to work and the two of them outgained the scoring efforts of Cave, Pontius, Mark Skinner and Terry Wright, and then, with the score 59-46 in Logan Elm's favor, Bilek ran away with seven unanswered points and Westfall was back in the ballgame, with the score 59-53.

After losing another point edge on a free throw, the Braves saw Neil Keller sink two charity tosses at 0:33 and a bucket at 0:15 and the score read 64-63 and fans didn't know what to expect.

But, the Mustangs turned the ball over and when Mark Skinner drew a foul, the Logan Elm playmaker calmly sank both free throws to seal a 66-63 win in the record books for the Braves of Logan Elm.

The big gun for the Braves, Chuck Cave, led all scorers in the fray with 10 two-pointers and three tosses from the charity stripe for 23 points.

Senior Randy Pontius had five field goals and four free throws for 14 points and Jeff Collins hooped the ball five times for 10 points.

Terry Wright netted nine, Mark Skinner, seven, and Jerry Scanlon had three.

The Mustangs' senior center Larry Bilek, led his team with 19 points including nine the final canto.

Bruce Starkey had five goals and two free throws for 12 markers. Neil Keller connected for eight points, Jeff Mowery sank eight, all in the second frame, Tom Adams fired six, Chris Weaver hooped five, Dave Clem ripped four and Eric Schleich hit a field goal. Schleich injured his ankle late in the first period and missed the rest of the game.

Turnovers hurt the Mustangs as they committed 15. Logan Elm on the other hand played nearly error free for three quarters. Most of their eight turnovers came in the final period.

Logan Elm sank 11 of 17 free throws for 64 per cent. Westfall made 20 of 28 charity tosses for a 71 per cent shooting average.

Both coaches had praise for their opponents. Coach Butch Kobel of Logan Elm said, "Westfall is a real scrappy ball club and shoots real well."

"I wasn't pleased at all with our defense. Offensively we didn't do too bad," he said.

Kobel said the Braves biggest problem is their bad habit of losing large leads in the second half after building them up during the first two frames.

Kobel also had praise for the "super job on defense" turned in by Randy Pontius and the leadership of Collins and Skinner.

Mustang coach Mike Eckle said simply, "Logan Elm played a whale of a ball game. They may have let down some in the third period and we jumped in. But Chuck Cave is a real good player and senior Mark Skinner made those two pressure packed free throws and that shows you that he's a good consistent basketball player."

Eckle said he thought the Mustangs played "outstandingly" while coming from 20 points back in the final two frames, but was hurt by inaction during the first half.

"But, Bilek came alive in the final period, and Dave Clem, and John Long, who saw his first action of the year tonight, came off the bench and picked us up," Eckle said.

Logan Elm is 5-1 for the season. The Braves visit Fisher Catholic Jan. 7.

The Mustangs are 1-6 and host Paint Valley Jan. 7 before traveling to Southeastern a day later.

Logan Elm's reserve team ran its season record to 5-1 after it beat Westfall 48-47 in the reserve contest. A nip and tuck affair all the way, Logan Elm had first half leads of 7-5 and 21-19 but Westfall took a third period edge 31-28.

The little Mustangs apparently had things wrapped up with a 42-39 edge with one second in regulation time.

Logan Elm's Mark Vanover drew a foul but only made the first shot of the one-and-one situation.

Dan Schleich threw in the ball for Westfall, but as he did, Vanover drew another foul from a Mustang and this time sank both shots making the score 42-42 and sent the game into overtime. The lead see-sawed back and forth, but Logan Elm managed to pull ahead as the seconds ticked off to win the game 48-47.

Vanover led the Braves with 18 points, Tom Congrove hooped 12, Dan Hill canned seven, Bruce Hannigan rimmed five while Brian Hannigan, Jeff Davis and Terry Wadlington each scored two.

H. L. Gibson netted 11, Dan Schleich fired ten and Kevin Creamer hooped nine for the Mustangs. Randy Hartzell meshed six, Greg Cooper added five, Amos Watson canned four and Mark List sank two.

Finley Takes Stand In Baseball Lawsuit

CHICAGO (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley was scheduled to take the stand today and tell his side of his $3.5 million sale of three star players voided by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Finley's attorney Neil Papiano said he would call Finley as his first witness. Finley contends that Kuhn unfairly voided the sale of the three players because the commissioner has not got the power to do anything but regulate honesty of the game.

New York Yankees President Gabe Paul testified for Finley Tuesday and disclosed for the first time that he was in Finley's office June 15 and heard both sides of a conversation the A's owner had with pitcher Vida Blue's agent.

So far, trial testimony has indicated that the Detroit Tigers and Texas Rangers made bids of $1 million or more for Blue's services, but it was Paul and the Yankees who finally convinced Finley to sell — for $1.5 million.

Besides Blue, Finley sold Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each within a few hours of the midnight June 15 trading deadline. Both clubs were named as defendants in Finley's action, and both have lawyers present for the U.S. District Court proceedings that began last Thursday.

Papiano asked Paul if he thought Kuhn had power to void sales which did not break any rules if the commissioner thought they were not in the best interests of baseball. Paul replied:

"I don't see how he can, if it's consistent with the rules."

Paul said he would not seek advice of the commissioner in advance of trades if he did not think the trades violated the rule book. He said the commissioner should have no power to regulate the business of baseball except to make sure it complied with the game's rules.

Paul testified that Finley convinced Blue to give up his free agent status and sign a new contract with the A's. The Yankees' president said purchase of Blue's contract rather than an uncontracted player was part of a verbal understanding with Finley in advance of the sale.

When the University of Pittsburgh and Youngstown State agreed to play each other four years ago, it looked like a good deal for both teams.

Youngstown's up and coming program would list a big name competitor and Pitt's schedule would have a breathing space.

Pitt breathed easy for three years but in the last of the contracted-for battles, Youngstown State rallied Tuesday night for a 78-73 victory on its home court.

Jim Murray of the New York Giants led the National League in home runs with seven in 1909.

Buckeyes Edge Davidson, 64-57

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Buckeyes pulled through with a victory Tuesday night, but Ohio State basketball coach Eldon Miller was not satisfied with his team's performance. "We just didn't play hard enough to be a good team," said Miller following OSU's 64-57 nonconference victory over Davidson, a team that has lost seven games in a row. "We have to show more consistency. Davidson's patience cat and moused us into numerous errors and they slowed the tempo to be very effective."

Davidson Coach Dave Pritchett's strategy included fielding only his five starters, and one man from the bench who didn't even add a point. "You have to remember we are in the building process, playing two freshmen, two sophomores and a senior," said Pritchett. "We gave it a good effort and if we keep on playing this well, we'll come on."

Ohio State's Kelvin Ransey paced his squad with 16 points, while game scoring honors went to Davidson's John Gerdy with 21.

Elsewhere, in the only conference game on the Ohio schedule, Tiffin defeated Urbana 73-66. In other non-conference games, Dayton prevailed over Santa Clara 90-81, Tennessee easily disposed of Xavier 97-73, and Youngstown State triumphed over Pittsburgh 78-73.

In Dayton's victory over Santa Clara, the Flyers almost blew a 16-point lead late in the game when Santa Clara pulled to within two. The Flyers were able to regain some momentum to add a cushion in the last two minutes of the contest. Jim Paxson scored a career high 28 points to pace Dayton.

In tournament action, Ohio Northern took the championship of the Ada

Rotary tournament with a 59-57 victory over Denison. Defiance beat Wilmington 95-82 in the consolation game.

Rio Grande forged an 83-68 victory over Marietta in the championship match of the Marietta basketball tournament. Rio Grande's Gil Price pulled down most valuable player honors with a 31-point performance.

In the Malone Kiwanis Pioneer classic, 6-foot-7 center Chris Reichert scored 24 points to pace Heidelberg in an 81-70 win over host Malone for championship honors. Reichert was named most valuable player of the two-day tournament.

Capital University will meet Northern Kentucky in the championship of the Capital City Classic in Columbus tonight. Capital routed Wright-Patterson 83-45 and Northern Kentucky edged Steubenville 67-63 en route to the finals.

Islanders Top Bruins, 3-0

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Center Bryan Trottier, who not long ago began shooting regularly, looked across the New York Islanders' dressing room.

"Good old 18," he said, motioning towards a teammate. "I don't think there's anything that shakes the old guy. Sometimes he looks like he's just floating out there; he's so smooth."

Trottier referred to Ed Westfall, a right winger who was playing junior hockey when the 20-year-old center was born. Tuesday night, Westfall scored two goals, one with a teammate in the penalty box, leading the Islanders past the Boston Bruins 3-0.

"The old guy's still got some jets, doesn't he? Can you believe the way he broke away for that second goal?" Trottier asked.

Westfall took a Lorne Henning pass in the neutral zone. His 36-year-old legs carried him past Boston defenseman Brad Park, then he sent his own rebound past former long-time teammate Gerry Cheevers for the game's closing goal.

In Tuesday night's other NHL game, the Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars skated to a 3-3 tie.

WELL COVERED — Doug Litchen, a seventh-grader from Garland, Tex., pedaled his way to football practice with his head and face almost covered by his parka hood. Cold weather swept through the Lone Star state with 5 inches of snow reported in some parts.

Sports Fishermen Take Smaller Catch

PORT ISABEL, Tex. (AP) — After 30 years of weathering the whims of mother nature and fishermen, Capt. Bob Williams has come to a conclusion: The new fishermen outnumber the new fish.

Williams began operating a charter service for deep-sea fishermen 30 years ago out of this South Texas port on the Gulf of Mexico when "the average catch per day ran in the hundreds of pounds and the fishermen enjoyed it."

"Today, you're lucky to average 40 to 50 pounds and the tourists just don't understand why they can't catch the fish like they used to," said Williams while reaching for a battered scrapbook crammed with pictures and yellowed newspaper clippings of prize catches in the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

The scrapbook depicts scenes of proud fishermen displaying swordfish, marlin, amberjack, red snapper and a 175-pound sea bass, the salt-water version of the fresh-water bass.

The clippings detail thousandpound catches of red snapper from the banks located 20 to 30 miles offshore, and a 1961 account recalls the exploits of three charter boats which brought 22 species of fish into port in one day.

"I still charter groups of fishermen who are just out for a good time and a little relaxation," said Williams. "But I tell my old customers not to expect the great days they had in the past. Of course, some days we get lucky and I look like a liar."

Williams blames the decline of the gamefish population on the area's shrimp industry which "plows the bottom of the ocean floor and destroys the natural habitat" with massive nets.

Carl Gayman, a nearby shrimper, claims the pollution and lack of fresh water flowing into the bays and estuaries where some gamefish species spawn causes the decline.

Although they cannot agree on a cause, both commercial and pleasure fishermen agree that the fish are not multiplying as fast as the fishermen.

In addition to thousands of tourists, Port Isabel also is the site for two fishing tournaments a year which attract more than 600 avid anglers.

The Texas International Fishing Tournament is the largest and oldest competition. It is held in August, and the 38th annual event this year attracted 586 contestants.

Fishermen compete for the Texas Grand Champion's title on a point system. Points are awarded for the species and size of the fish caught and the weight of the fishing line used to land the scaly critters.

Navy To Be Host To Boxing Matches

NEW YORK (AP) — "Don King joins the Navy," said the boxing promoter talking about the opening round of his nationally-televised U.S. boxing tournament which is scheduled to be held on board the aircraft carrier USS Lexington.

Listeners at a Tuesday news conference wondered if the Navy is ready. "I have a vivid imagination," King said in a major understatement as he envisioned fighters swapping hooks while jets roll overhead and he watches in the presence of naval brass and men who "are the guardians of our shores."

Of course there were wisecracks such as "What a place for a fighter to take a dive" and "I hope the show don't bomb," but King ignored them as he outlined the show which will be televised live by ABC Jan. 16 at Pensacola, Fla.

The program consisting of six bouts of eight rounds each in the featherweight, lightweight, welterweight, middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight divisions is the first set of quarter-finals in the U.S. tournament put together on the basis of The Ring Magazine's rankings.

The other quarter-finals, also to be televised, are scheduled for Feb. 13, March 6 and March 27. King said they will be held at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Marion State Correctional Institution at Marion, Ohio, which the promoter, who served a sentence for seconddegree murder, called "one of my alma maters." The dates and the sites have not yet been paired, King said.

The matchups for the Jan. 16 carrier show are Larry Holmes, Easton, Pa., vs. Tom Prater, Indianapolis, heavyweights; Bobby Cassidy, Brentwood, N.Y., vs. Willie Taylor, New York, light heavies; Mike Colbert, Portland, Ore., vs. Tony Chiaverini, Kansas City, middles; Randy Shields, Los Angeles, vs. Juan Cantres, Puerto Rico; Paddy Dolan, Freeport, N.Y., vs. Johnny Sullivan, Kearny, N.J., and Walter Seeley, Sayville, N.Y., vs. Hilbert Stevenson, Winston Salem, N.C., feathers.

Tourism Degree

NEW YORK (AP) — A graduate degree program in Tourism and Travel Administration will be offered for the first time nationwide beginning this winter at the New School for Social Research here.

Dr. John R. Everett, president of the New School, said that tourism and travel is the third largest industry in the United States. Despite some $72 billion spent on travel in this country in 1975, he continued, "the country lags far behind other nations in the formal preparation of trained professionals in the industry."

The study program, which leads to a Master of Professional Studies (MPS) degree, is designed for professionals already in the travel business and those who want careers in tourism and travel administration.

Indiana's basketball sweep of 32 games in 1975-76 tied the record for wins by an undefeated team. The mark was set by North Carolina in 1957 when Frank McGuire's Tar Heels beat Kansas and Wilt Chamberlain in triple overtime for the NCAA crown.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR THURSDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): It may occur to you to try and imitate another to get results. But think again. Your own methods could prove more advantageous in the long run.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): You may have a complex problem. Tackle it with unobtrusive but solid determination, however. Back what you should stoutly, but avoid being sharp with others.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Good Mercury influences should stimulate your ingenuity and unusual ideas. Present the latter at strategic moments: They should be accepted with enthusiasm now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Excellent lunar influences. You will not have to strain to accomplish now. A good period for building up your potentials, reviving a project previously set aside.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You may have some more revisions to make, but the general outlook indicates gains in most areas. A special reward may come from an unexpected source.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A day for accomplishment! Put out feelers to gain new perspective, a broadened viewpoint, a variety of opinions. Business deals favored.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Your artistry and creativity stimulated. A time for taking your truly original ideas out of the thought stage and putting them into action.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Avoid extremes. There's a tendency now to make mountains out of moleholes, to lose control of temper, emotions generally. Forewarned is forearmed!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Good Jupiter influences. Intellectual pursuits should prove highly stimulating. Do not overestimate your set-up, however. You may have to wait out SOME results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Curb emotions and a tendency toward eccentricity. Tighten reins on spending but don't scrimp unwisely and lose out in the long run.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): When you believe in anything, your enthusiasm is so intense it is contagious, so make sure you are correct in your beliefs. A day in which your influence will be strongly felt.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Some questionable schemes may be suggested. Be alert — and reject promptly. Also, avoid unconventional behavior, extremes in word or action.

YOU BORN TODAY are a strongly independent individual, endowed with outstanding integrity. Extremely industrious and honest, you can always be counted upon to handle responsibilities and obligations to the fullest, thus making an admirable employee. As an employer, however, you may be too demanding, overly critical with subordinates. If you can learn to "give a little" — be a bit more tolerant, however — success as an executive is assured, for you are unusually competent, practical and hard-working. Areas in which you could shine, career-wise: business, finance, printing and Fr. literature. Birthdate of:

Views On Tiger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Satire is rumored to be what dies on Saturday night. It also may be what expires the day after Christmas, namely this Sunday night, when NBC airs "That Was the Year That Was — 1976."

But Herman Rush, one of the two executive producers on the show, is unfazed by the possibility most viewers still will be on the road, en route home from a Yule weekend with friends and loved ones.

"True, viewing may be down," he said. "On the other hand, it's a holiday week. There'll be a lot of viewers tired of all the Christmas and holiday specials. They'll be looking for something different."

"That Was the Year" is a new version of the old "That Was the Week That Was" satirical series on NBC in the early 1960s. Rush said that if this Sunday's show clicks, a series could result.

The 90-minute opus, on which taping began last Thursday and ended at 5 a.m. Sunday, is going to have kind of a news format as it pokes fun at major events of this year, Rush said by phone from New York.

It will have actresses Blythe Danner and Brenda Vaccaro, and comic-writer Buck Henry and comic Robert Klein personing the anchor desk.

And various reports on the state of the cosmos will come from such folk as NBC newsmen Edwin Newman; Rex Reed, the celebrated, ah, critic, and Candice Bergen, the noted Polaroidist.

Since satire tends to offend at times, Rush was asked if NBC censors or lawyers have asked him to whack out certain things they felt might gross out the citizenry at home.

"There's been some stuff we've had battles on, none as serious or controversial as I might like," he laughed, alluding to the fact that nothing gets a show more publicity than a rousing controversy.

"For example, we had a sketch to show things that died out in 1976 — the Cadillac convertible, the air mail stamp, red dye No. 2 and the NBC peacock."

But NBC barristers outlawed the demise of the peacock.

"They say it hasn't died," producer Rush explained. "They're protecting their copyright on it." The issue of preserving the peacock for future NBC generations having been settled, Rush moved on to another issue still unresolved at the time of his interview.

It concerned part of the show's report on un-sportsmanlike conduct in 1976, such as fights in baseball and hockey. The questionable segment involved tennis, of all things.

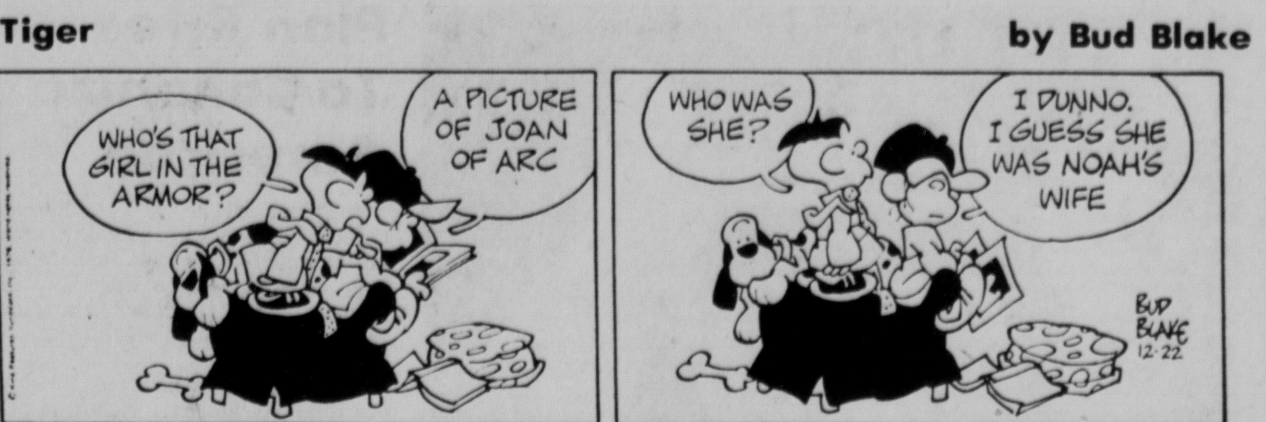

In the segment, Rush said, Romanian racketeer Ilie Nastase was captured on film raising his third finger in protest about something.

(The Texas scholar, Don Meredith, once spotted a football fan giving the same gesture to millions of TV viewers and commented, "What he's saying, neighbors, is simply 'We're No. 1.'")

Rush paused to check on the status of Nastase's digital display.

"Well," he finally said, "the only item they (the censors) have asked us to take out is that Nastase gesture. Which was on television when it happened, by the way."

PICKAWAY PLAINS SPEAKER — The guest speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Pickaway Plains Sertoma Club was County Prosecutor Richard Gerhardt. He spoke to the local civic club about some of the incidents that have occurred during his term as prosecutor. To illustrate his point that longer prison sentences could cut down on the amount of crime, Gerhardt cited a scientific computer study that showed adding one-year to the sentences of criminals, the number of crimes committed by repeat offenders could be reduced by 60 per cent. Gerhardt was introduced by program chairman John Bost.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Mike Powers is another face in the Stockholm subway, another pair of galoshes and a wet overcoat shuffling into the Vallingby train and riding home in the 4 p.m. blackness.

Nothing distinguishes him from the other suburban trudgers. Nothing stamps him as an exile, one of the guys who went over the hill in 1968 because he thought the Vietnam War was wrong.

Powers is going bald now and has a bit of a gut. When he speaks English, the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn and a kind of Scandinavian intonation battle for his accent.

In eight years Mike Powers has blended into the gray, white and black tones of Swedish life. He is neither the Finance chairman Goldschmidt stated, "If these increases are granted, then all the other city departments will want increases also. We can't grant all those increases and still meet a balanced budget." Goldschmidt again stated that he called the special meeting to acquaint council with the problem, and asked for the city fathers' opinions.

Council agreed to consider the problem and act on it in the very near future. Bowers urged council's help on meeting the top level salaries, and he promised the utilities board's help in trimming the budget in some way.

Plan Rites To Canonize American

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic educators from Pennsylvania are expected to flock to Rome after their schools close in June for the canonization of America's first male saint, Bishop John Neumann of Philadelphia.

Pope Paul VI announced Monday that Bishop Neumann, a pioneer in the development of Catholic parochial schools in the United States, would be canonized on June 19.

"The final day of all graduation exams is June 17th," John Cardinal Krol, the present archbishop of Philadelphia, explained today. "This will allow time to travel over on the 18th and be there the 19th."

Vatican sources said they expect several thousand Americans to attend the canonization of Bishop Neumann, a 19th century immigrant from what is now Czechoslovakia. He was declared "blessed," one step below sainthood, 13 years ago.

Bishop Neumann was born in 1811 and immigrated to the United States in 1836. He became bishop of Philadelphia in 1852 and is credited with organizing the building of 40 parochial schools and 80 churches in his eight years as bishop.

The Pope accepted as a miracle the recovery of Michael Flanagan of Philadelphia from bone cancer in 1964 after prayers to Bishop Neumann. Normally, the church requires recognition of two miracles before a person can be declared a saint, but Pope Paul has waived the rule frequently and did so last year for Mother Elizabeth Seton, the first American-born saint.

The first American saint was Mother Frances Cabrini, a native of Italy, who was canonized in 1947, 30 years after her death.

"The first day of winter jolted Ohio Tuesday with low temperatures and winds producing chill factors well below zero across the state.

And forecasters said while there would be some moderation of temperatures, snow was likely to return to the state Wednesday night and Thursday.

Only southern Ohio was likely to experience levels above the freezing mark, with temperatures elsewhere in the mid to upper 20s.

Lows tonight were to moderate somewhat with temperatures 10 to 15 in the north and 15 to 20 in the south.

Gale warnings were removed Tuesday evening for portions of Lake Erie. Winds on the lake were to decrease to southwest at 15 to 25 knots during the day.

PICKAWAY PLAINS SPEAKER — The guest speaker at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Pickaway Plains Sertoma Club was County Prosecutor Richard Gerhardt. He spoke to the local civic club about some of the incidents that have occurred during his term as prosecutor. To illustrate his point that longer prison sentences could cut down on the amount of crime, Gerhardt cited a scientific computer study that showed adding one-year to the sentences of criminals, the number of crimes committed by repeat offenders could be reduced by 60 per cent. Gerhardt was introduced by program chairman John Bost.

Deserters Shunning Carter's Pardon

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Mike Powers is another face in the Stockholm subway, another pair of galoshes and a wet overcoat shuffling into the Vallingby train and riding home in the 4 p.m. blackness.

Nothing distinguishes him from the other suburban trudgers. Nothing stamps him as an exile, one of the guys who went over the hill in 1968 because he thought the Vietnam War was wrong.

Powers is going bald now and has a bit of a gut. When he speaks English, the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn and a kind of Scandinavian intonation battle for his accent.

In eight years Mike Powers has blended into the gray, white and black tones of Swedish life. He is neither the

Lancer Boosters Meet

The Blue Lancers Booster Club sponsored a Christmas Party for Corps members on December 18 at the St. Philip's Parish House. Members enjoyed games and a visit from Santa Claus. Following a gift exchange, punch and cookies were served.

The December meeting of the Blue Lancers Booster Club was held at the home of Mrs. Joyce Harris, 601 Elm Avenue, on Dec. 13. Members approved material for new uniforms for the Corps. It was noted to lease drums from Coyle of Columbus with the money to be applicable for future purchase.

New officers were elected for 1977. They are: President, Mrs. Ruby Hoover; Vice-President, Mrs. Ruth Schleich; Secretary, Mrs. Judy Nungester; Treasurer, Mrs. Ruby Claypool; and News Reporter, Mrs. Carol Bowling.

The January meeting will be held on January 10 at the home of Mrs. Carol Bowling, 350 Juhl Dr.

people in these positions."

Finance chairman Goldschmidt stated, "If these increases are granted, then all the other city departments will want increases also. We can't grant all those increases and still meet a balanced budget." Goldschmidt again stated that he called the special meeting to acquaint council with the problem, and asked for the city fathers' opinions.

Council agreed to consider the problem and act on it in the very near future. Bowers urged council's help on meeting the top level salaries, and he promised the utilities board's help in trimming the budget in some way.

Plan Rites To Canonize American

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic educators from Pennsylvania are expected to flock to Rome after their schools close in June for the canonization of America's first male saint, Bishop John Neumann of Philadelphia.

Pope Paul VI announced Monday that Bishop Neumann, a pioneer in the development of Catholic parochial schools in the United States, would be canonized on June 19.

"The final day of all graduation exams is June 17th," John Cardinal Krol, the present archbishop of Philadelphia, explained today. "This will allow time to travel over on the 18th and be there the 19th."

Vatican sources said they expect several thousand Americans to attend the canonization of Bishop Neumann, a 19th century immigrant from what is now Czechoslovakia. He was declared "blessed," one step below sainthood, 13 years ago.

Bishop Neumann was born in 1811 and immigrated to the United States in 1836. He became bishop of Philadelphia in 1852 and is credited with organizing the building of 40 parochial schools and 80 churches in his eight years as bishop.

The Pope accepted as a miracle the recovery of Michael Flanagan of Philadelphia from bone cancer in 1964 after prayers to Bishop Neumann. Normally, the church requires recognition of two miracles before a person can be declared a saint, but Pope Paul has waived the rule frequently and did so last year for Mother Elizabeth Seton, the first American-born saint.

The first American saint was Mother Frances Cabrini, a native of Italy, who was canonized in 1947, 30 years after her death.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first day of winter jolted Ohio Tuesday with low temperatures and winds producing chill factors well below zero across the state.

And forecasters said while there would be some moderation of temperatures, snow was likely to return to the state Wednesday night and Thursday.

Only southern Ohio was likely to experience levels above the freezing mark, with temperatures elsewhere in the mid to upper 20s.

Lows tonight were to moderate somewhat with temperatures 10 to 15 in the north and 15 to 20 in the south.

Gale warnings were removed Tuesday evening for portions of Lake Erie. Winds on the lake were to decrease to southwest at 15 to 25 knots during the day.
